THE LINDBERGH AFFAIR.

CRUDE THREATS IN LETTER.

ACCOMPLICE IN HOUSE?

(Reuter's Special Service).

New York, Mar. 8.

The crudity of the latest threat of the kidnappers of Colonel Lindbergh's baby son—"We shall burn the baby alive and kill him with a ten-inch knife"—is the latest sensational disclosure in connection with the affair, which appears to be no nearer solution.

The police reveal that they are still investigating the possibility that some member of the Lindbergh household was involved in the kidnapping. Suspicion to this end was aroused by the fact that a fox terrier dog, usually alert, gave no warning that any prowler was about.

Flare of Publicity.

Against this is not the submission that because of the flare of publicity surrounding the famous airman and his family, the internal arrangements of his household might easily be learned in advance by a stranger.

The two men and the woman arrested yesterday have proved that they knew nothing of the letter of Saturday demanding ransom money.

A Decoy.

A trooper resembling Colonel Lindbergh has been sent out as a decoy in order to secure the arrest of the authors of the letter.

The police at Minneapolis have been informed that an unsigned telegram had been sent to Col. Lindbergh advising him to cease investigations through Chicago direct.

The telegram added: "The baby so far is fair and doing good."

INSTITUTE'S LARGER SCOPE.

London, Mar. 8.

The Prince of Wales presided over a meeting held to-day to consider the further development of the British and Spanish American Institute.

With a view to the inclusion of Brazil within the range of the Institute's activities, it will be known in future as the Ibero-American Institute of Britain, and its functions will be the promotion of fuller knowledge, better acquaintance and closer association between Britain and the countries of Ibero-America.

On the proposal of the Prince, Mr. Philip Guesata was appointed Honorary Director and Brigadier General Sir Arthur Maitland Honorary Treasurer of the Institute.—British Wireless.

RIDING MISHAP AT VALLEY.

MR. H. F. YUNG SENT TO HOSPITAL.

Mr. H. F. Yung, a well-known local pony-owner, met with an unfortunate riding mishap this morning, resulting in his admission to hospital with rather nasty injuries.

It appears that Mr. Yung, who frequently visits the racetrack, was riding at the Valley this morning when, near the two-mile post, his pony bucked. Mr. Yung was thrown and in addition to other injuries his face was badly smashed. Suffering from concussion, he was removed in an ambulance to the French Hospital. His many friends hope that he will have a speedy recovery.

THE BRITISH FORCES IN SHANGHAI.

A Tribute to Brig. Fleming.

WAR OFFICE VOTE.

London, Mar. 8.

Everyone's attention has been fixed upon the small detachment of the British Army carrying out a grave responsibility in Shanghai.

Brigadier-General Fleming has been asked to show, not only the qualities of a soldier, but those of a diplomatist and a statesman, and he has shown these qualities to a degree of which they might all be proud.

As regards the troops themselves, he had been informed by one recently returned from the Far East, that five years ago there was anti-British feeling in China.

Ambassadors of Peace.

Now this had apparently disappeared, which he attributed largely to the behaviour of the troops, who had shown themselves the best ambassadors of peace.

He felt sure that the whole House would join in sending a message of goodwill and congratulations to the small detachment which had so nobly upheld the cause of peace and the honour of Britain.

Thus Mr. Duff Cooper, the Financial Secretary to the War Office, in introducing the Army Estimates in the House of Commons to-day.

£3 1/2 Millions Saving.

The Estimates showed, he said, that the amount asked for was £36,488,000, a saving of £3,442,000 on the sum voted last year.

This reduction was achieved by drastic economies and the suspension of many essential Army services.

One economy of £1,000,000 was obtained by the cancelling of the territorial Army's annual camp training, a useful saving, but this it was felt could not be repeated next year.

Mr. Duff Cooper recalled that his labour predecessor at the War Office, in presenting the Estimates last year, had stated that economies had been carried to the utmost practical limit. Nevertheless the army vote had been reduced to meet the special call for economy by a saving of 3 1/2 millions. This year's estimates must, therefore, not be taken as a standard to which the future estimates could be expected to conform.—British Wireless.

JAPANESE PLANES OVER SOOCHOW.

WATCHING THE CHINESE TROOP MOVEMENTS.

SKIRMISHES CONTINUE.

Shanghai, Mar. 9, 10.30 a.m.

AFTER BITTER FIGHTING FOR OVER THIRTY HOURS, the Japanese lines in the Luho sector are reliably reported to be intact, the Chinese offensive having worn itself out. A period of quiet now prevails in this region, though further skirmishes have occurred at Taichong, between Japanese cavalry patrols and Chinese infantry.

Troops are still pouring into Soochow in large numbers and it is estimated that over fifty thousand have already arrived. General Tsai Ting-kai, who has been in Soochow, at a conference of military commanders, has returned to Kunshan, the present field headquarters of the Nineteenth Route Army.

Japanese aeroplanes have been scouting over Kunshan and Soochow, presumably watching the Chinese troop movements. No attempt was made to drop bombs.

JAPANESE WARNING.

General Shirakawa has warned the Chinese Command that unless the mobilisation of further troops is stopped the responsibility for a further outbreak of hostilities will be China. In the meantime, no offensive operations have been undertaken by the Japanese, who are preserving an armed truce as far as possible.

Another stiff brush between small detachments of the rival forces is reported from Kading, where the lines are in close proximity.

PUBLIC PANICKY.

(Special to "Telegraph")

Shanghai, Mar. 9, 11.35 a.m.

The Chinese staff have returned to the Shanghai South Station at Nantao, which was abandoned yesterday and the track has been relaid and traffic resumed.

The situation is, however, difficult owing to the circulation of very wild reports, constantly throwing a highly nervous population into a state of panic.—Reuter.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT'S WARNING.

READY TO FIGHT IF FAR EAST INTERESTS ARE ATTACKED.

Moscow, Mar. 8.

A warning that the Soviet Government's concentration upon completing the Five Year Plan will not preclude Moscow from defending its interests in the Far East was conveyed to-day by an official spokesman.

The preservation of peace by all means is the first basic condition of our entire policy towards events in the Far East, declared M. Kalinin, the President of the Central Executive Committee of the U.S.S.R.

"But," he added, "simultaneously, we cannot and we shall not be indifferent towards the actions of capitalist countries.

FIGHT TO END.

"If any capitalist State menaces the vital interests of our people, the whole country will say, 'We will fight to the end.' The whole country must be prepared for this struggle so that there will be less anxiety to attack us."—Reuter.

League Assembly Resolution.

THE END OF THE DEBATE.

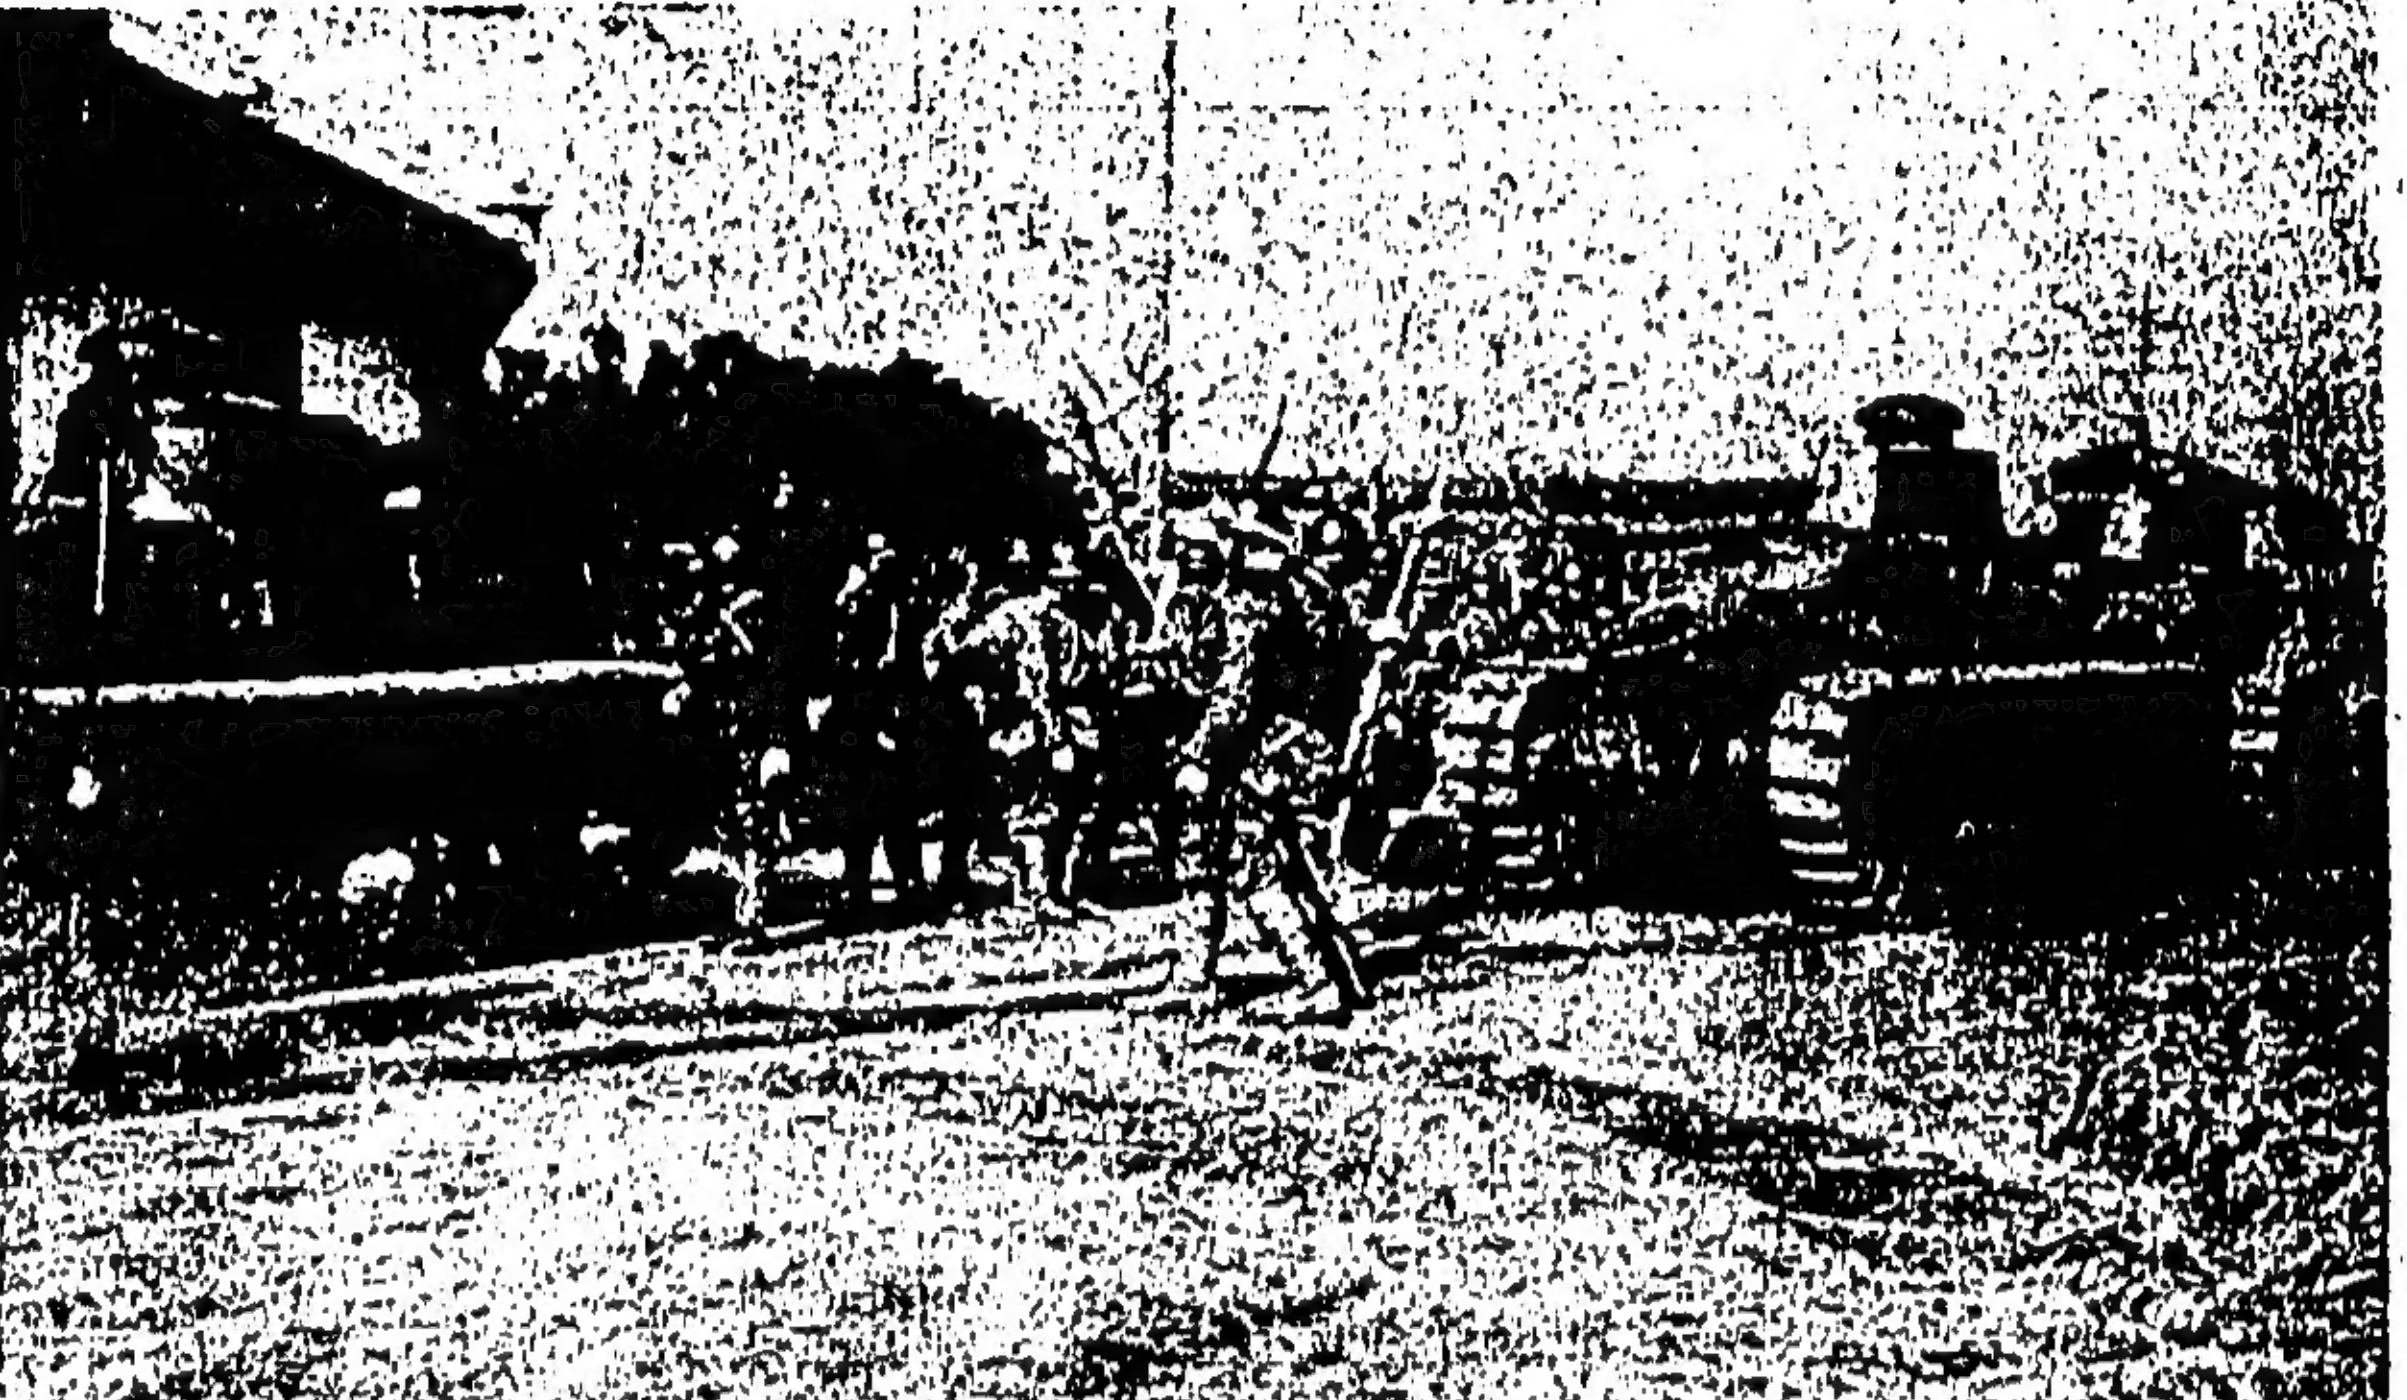

London, Mar. 8.

Sir John Simon, in the League Assembly at Geneva to-day, read a message from Sir Miles Lampson, the British Minister in China, stating that in accordance with the Assembly's request, the British, United States, French and Italian authorities at Shanghai are collaborating to send Geneva daily a joint telegram giving the latest available information regarding the situation in the Shanghai neighbourhood.

The first report dated March 6th gave the position of the Japanese lines, and stated that occasional skirmishing was then continuing. The Assembly continued the general debate on the various aspects of the question.

SLUMP IN DOLLAR.

THREE FARTHING DOWN.

The Hongkong dollar to-day is lower than for more than three months past, the slump in silver being reflected in a sharp drop in the sterling value of the Colony's currency.

Exchange opened this morning at 1s. 4 1/2 d. on demand, a decline of a halfpenny compared with yesterday's rate. Later in the forenoon, there was a further drop of a farthing, the demand quotation falling to 1s. 4 1/4 d.

London reported a drop in silver of 9/16ths spot and 7/16ths forward. The decline was due to general selling and absence of support, following the sharp appreciation in sterling. After the official fixing, the market ruled easy.

There is no change in New York, where the market is dull.

The local market is distinctly easy. Some business has been done, merchants being anxious to buy.

BUDGET NEARLY BALANCED.

BRITISH FINANCIAL STRENGTH.

London, Mar. 8.

Revenue returns for the week ending March 6th indicate that revenue continues to come in satisfactorily and that the economies forecasted in the revised Budget of last September will be realised.

The total revenue received into the Exchequer during the week amounted to £26.6 millions and expenditure to £17.2 millions, leaving a surplus of £9.4 millions and reducing the deficit from £16.4 millions to £7 millions. This is £21 millions less than the deficit on the same day of last year.

There now remain three and a half weeks in which to secure a balanced Budget, and there seems every reason to expect that this will be accomplished. Income Tax requires only £17 1/2 millions and the gurtax £11 millions to secure the estimate.—British Wireless.

Mr. A. G. Langston of 237, The Peak, was fined $5 by Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning for allowing his dog to be at large without a muzzle. A similar summons against Mr. O. Sub-Inspector Chester Woods intimated that Mr. Anderson was rather fortunate, as these summonses had been taken very seriously.—Reuter.

STERLING SOARS.

REMARKABLE RISE AGAINST ALL EXCHANGES.

London, Mar. 8.

Foreigners are now beginning to scramble to get sterling, the confidence in the pound to-day being markedly in contrast with the mistrust a short time ago.

The pound sterling took an upward leap to-day, jumping a fraction over eightpence in value in terms of United States gold dollars and its value now is the highest since the end of November.

A further rise is expected, not only in New York, but against all other leading currencies on the exchange market.

Big Jumps.

In New York, from the overnight level of 3.53 1/4, the £ shot up to 3.71 1/4, bringing it to approximately 15/3 (against par). This compares with 14/1 three weeks ago.

In Montreal, the £ is quoted at 4.10, its value being 16/10 as against 16/4 three weeks ago.

In Paris, the £ rose from 90 on Monday to 94 1/2, giving a value of 16/2. In Amsterdam, the rise was from 8.79 to 9.24, the new value being 15/2 1/2.

Gold "Slumps."

This remarkable recovery automatically forced down the London price of gold, which is now 115/- per ounce, as compared with 128/10 on February 8.

The best offer for gold sovereigns obtainable to-day is now 26/- whereas the ruling price a fortnight ago was 27/6.

Year of Opportunity.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, addressing a Unionist meeting to-day, said he looked upon 1931 as England's year of danger and 1932 as England's year of opportunity.

Few could fail to be amazed at the change of affairs which had taken place in the national outlook during the last six months. They were not, however, yet out of the wood. They must carry on a little longer and go forward with confidence in the hope of a great expansion of trade and prosperity.—British Wireless and Reuter.

EMPRESS HOTEL MYSTERY.

NO TRACE OF U.S. STUDENT.

Every effort is being made by the Criminal Investigation Department to locate Mr. Jack Bryant, an American student who has been missing since the week-end from his room at the Empress Hotel, on the central waterfront.

At Police Headquarters this morning, it was stated that a number of European officers and as many Chinese subordinates as were available are engaged in a thorough comb-out of the city in an intensive search for the missing man. The possibility that Mr. Bryant may have gone up to Canton or Macao or some other near point is not overlooked, although it is pointed out that this is hardly probable, as there are no indications of Mr. Bryant, if he had embarked on such a project, having taken any luggage with him.

On World Tour.

Mr. Bryant, engaged on a world tour, arrived here a few days ago with a fellow-student, Mr. C. R. Bradford. They stayed at the Empress Hotel, described as a Chinese-style lodging establishment with "modern conveniences," but after a couple of days, Mr. Bradford decided to move nearer into the city and went to live at the Hotel Cecil. Mr. Bryant stayed behind.

Since Monday, when Mr. Bradford last saw his friend, Mr. Bryant has been missing, and after repeated attempts to locate him, without success, Mr. Bradford communicated his fears to the American Consulate and the police authorities.

A native of Amarillo, Texas, Mr. Bryant is 5 ft. 11 in. in height, and has brown hair, blue eyes and a small moustache. He is 23 years of age. At the time of his disappearance, it is thought that he was wearing white duck trousers, a grey jacket, grey felt hat and an overcoat.

NATIVE CUSTOMS IN BURMA.

LADY ADDRESSES LOCAL ROTARIANS.

An interesting pen-picture of Burma and its people was given by Mrs. Broadbent at yesterday's luncheon of the Hongkong Rotary Club, held at Messrs. Lane Crawford's Restaurant under the Chairmanship of Sir William Hornell.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Broadbent, the Chairman welcomed the following guests: Rotarian L. E. Schroeder, of the Liege Club, Belgium, Mr. F. L. Cole, of the American Consulate, Hongkong, Mr. S. Boxer, Warden of Morrison Hall, University Hostel, Mr. Elly Kadourie, of Marble Hall, Shanghai, Mr. G. Pickering, of Lloyd's Register, Mr. A. C. Spence, Sydney, Australia, and Mr. E. Fromm, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

Mr. Schroeder, in a brief address, said that he was engaged on a business trip, and extended the best wishes of his Club in Belgium to the Hongkong and Canton Clubs. He remarked that there were ten Clubs in Belgium, which had only eight million inhabitants, but Rotary was getting on very well there.

He referred to the fact that four years ago he attended the Rotary Convention at Minneapolis and urged all those who had the opportunity of visiting the Convention not to miss it.

20 Years in Burma.

In introducing Mrs. Broadbent, the Chairman explained that she and her husband had spent some 20 years in the latter as a practising barrister, and had spent some three years in Mandalay. The Chairman remarked that he had visited the country and he hoped to be able to visit it again.

Mrs. Broadbent said:—When I was asked to address you it was strongly indicated that the more frivolous I could be the better. My subject, perhaps, lends itself rather to this mode of treatment as of all the races of the East the Burman is easily the most gay and light-hearted.

He has been called the "Irishman of the East," "Nature's gentleman," "A lazy rotter," (Laughter). Having spent 20 years in his country, and knowing him to some extent, I see the point of each of these descriptions. He is happy-go-lucky, unmethodical, unpunctual, unreliable and has no love for hard work. But he is blessed with a keen sense of humour and has very pleasant manners.

Take a respectable village elder, one who has known nothing of cities and has had little intercourse with strangers.

Simple Courtesy.

He will receive you, a casual traveller, with wonderful simple courtesy, with none of the over effusiveness or cringing sometimes displayed by Indians in similar circumstances. He neither asserts nor humbles himself. He spreads his best mat for you to sit upon and does not apologise for the absence of a chair, which, of course, is never used by him. The Burmese word for "thing" is Kalataing, meaning the "thing the foreigner sits on."

Dislike Interpreters.

Some little knowledge of the language is, of course, necessary, if you want to establish friendly relations, for they have a strange dislike of being talked to through an interpreter, more especially if he is an Indian. There is no trace of shyness in the women. Purdah is unknown here. They have always mixed freely with the men. They are extremely friendly and seem to take a real pleasure in meeting a white woman, and are particularly interested in her clothes.

Conversation is a little limited, and as with other Orientals consists mainly of searching questions as to one's age, income, size and rent of house, husband's occupation and number of children.

Mistake for Decolts.

We once had the experience at a village, within twenty miles of Mandalay, though rather off the beaten track, of being mistaken for decolts. We rode into this village early one morning to find it apparently absolutely deserted. After a bit I caught sight of a face peeping out from behind the post of a house, then another from behind a sack of paddy. At length, a woman, braver than the rest, ventured out. As our talk with her was merely about buying some chickens, and the display of money showed that we meant to pay for them and not commandeer them, others soon emerged and gathered round us. All the able-bodied men had gone off for some distance to cut wood, leaving the old men, women, and children, in the village. They told us that on catching sight of us a little distance off they really believed we were decolts, and that was why they had hidden themselves.

Gaiety and Colour.

Arriving in Rangoon from India or China you would be struck by the atmosphere of gaiety and colour. Kipling, comparing it with India, describes it as a "cleaner, greener land." His stay in the country was quite the briefest, and in his fine literary song, "On the Road to Mandalay," he has taken more than a poet's licence with the geography of the country, but it sounds uncommonly well.

There is colour, gaiety and laughter everywhere. It is positively infectious. Whereas in India the crowd is all clothed in white of a varying degree of cleanliness, and in China, black, dark blue, and grey, a Burman crowd is a regular kaleidoscope of colour. An Indian crowd, too, is almost entirely male, and is grave and serious. In Burma, nobody seems serious. Women are as plentiful as men, moving about freely and unveiled, chattering, chaffing with passers-by, laughing and smoking what Kipling called, "her whacking white cheroot," not made of tobacco but of chopped up aromatic wood in a white bamboo fibre wrapping. Both men and women are clothed in skirts of bright coloured Burman silk. They live up to the slogan "Encourage home industry."

Young Smokers.

The children are miniature replicas of their parents, complete with white cheroot or cigarette. Anything that is old enough to walk is old enough to smoke.

The Burman is small of stature, sloopy-eyed and yellow-skinned, and distinctly Mongolian. They are quick and active of body and the young Burman is quite a fair athlete. He has shown extraordinary aptitude for football—soccer only, not rugby. Many years ago, a team of Rangoon school boys, none of them over 18, played a draw with a regimental team that had won the Army Cup in India.

Excitable Race.

The Burmans are excitable and fond of dramas, dances and shows of all kinds. Up to a point they are courageous. They are callous as regards causing suffering to others and prone to crimes of violence. Decoltry, that is, robbery with violence by armed men in bands of five or more, is of common occurrence, and the percentage of convictions for violent crime is far higher in Burma than in any other province of India.

Anti-British Movement.

Sedition in Burma was no doubt stirred up in the first instance by agitators in India. They began by working on the Burman's religious feelings, telling him that the Westerners were slighting his religion when they visited their pagodas without removing their shoes, though the older homes of Buddhism, Ceylon and Japan, had never insisted on the removal of shoes at their sacred shrines.

The agitator had his way, and in the name of religion, launched what was really a political and Anti-British movement. No European, barring an occasional tourist, now ever goes up to pagoda platforms in Burma.

Burma Pagodas.

Burma pagodas are quite different from those of China. They are made of solid, lime-washed, brickwork. It is an act of merit to build a pagoda, but apparently there is no merit in repairing one that another man has built. The result is that the landscape is dotted with little white pagodas, all built on the same pattern and most of them falling into decay. Every English village has its church, but a Burma village can count its pagodas by the score. The building of pagodas is no much in vogue that when conversing with a well-to-do elderly Burman, it is ordinary manners to assume that he has followed the fashion, and to address him as Pagadaga, i.e., "builder of pagodas."

The acquiring of merit is the keynote of Buddhism as practiced in Burma. But there are less expensive methods of acquiring merit than building a pagoda. A monastery is less costly, or an open platform with a roof over it, where any casual traveller may camp.

Women Have No Soul.

Those who cannot rise so high can place little bowls of drinking water at the corner of the road. He it noted it is the wife who always keeps the bowls filled, but it is the husband who gets the merit. She, poor thing, can never have a soul as long as she remains a woman. Her only chance is to be born some pleasant animal in the next life and gradually work up to be a man. "May you be born a pig or a woman in your next life" is a specially scathing form of abuse.

A male Burman Buddhist, however, is not born with a soul. In order to acquire a soul he must don the yellow robe and become a phungyi for some period of his life. In most cases this is for a few days only. About the age of 15 a Burman boy goes through a ceremony in which his head is made "white" by shaving, after which he assumes the yellow robe and goes into a monastery for a minimum period of five days.

Thousands of Monks.

The yellow robe is much in evidence all over Burma. In Mandalay alone there are many thousands of these monks. The universal kindness inculcated by the Buddhist religion does not seem to draw the line at sheltering criminals, and I fear that many a man who should be in gaol poses as a holy man under the yellow robe. It is a fact, at any rate, that when any man is wanted by the Police they generally go and comb out the monasteries.

At daylight, early morning streams of these yellow-robed figures went their way through town and village, with large black hampers, begging bowls hung round their necks and grasped with the two hands. Into these bowls the faithful empty out the contents of the rice-pots and curry pans—a most unhygienic mess the contents of these bowls must be! But it is probably reserved for the humbler guests of the monastery! Theoretically, a monk must not buy food for his is a vow of poverty.

Food Difficultly Overcome.

A good Buddhist must take no life. This embodies considerable complications for the Burman, who is no vegetarian like the Hindu. His solution is to eat what he finds and to ask no questions.

Fish enters largely into their dietary in a particularly objectionable form. All kinds of fish are buried in the ground with a large quantity of salt, and it is a terrible ordeal to be stuck in a railway siding near a truck full of this composition, especially in hot weather.

You would think they ought to be grateful to the fishermen. Not a bit of it! He is considered the most low-down fellow, almost as

THE NAVY'S TRIBUTE TO M.2 VICTIMS: THE U. S. S. CALIFORNIA EAST BOUND.

The solemn scene on board H. M. S. Adamant during the memorial service to M. 2 in West Bay, Portland. After the Church of England and the Roman Catholic services had been read by the Rev. E. S. Ulyat (left), R.N., and Father A. Forty (Gosport), Adamant drifted over the spot where M. 2 is known to be and wreaths were dropped overboard.—(Times copyright).

Mr. P. Nichols and Miss Phillis Spender-Clay were married at St. John's Church, Dormans Land, Surrey, on February 6, and our picture shows the bride and bridegroom. (Times copyright).

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Ann, Cecily and Mary Frances Fenwick live with their grandparents. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grand parents—known as "Uncle" and "Aunt"—have long since lost their wealth, and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 28, and Philip Fenwick, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Harry McKel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name the wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibility of the home.

Mary Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl, the Armoist, stock company actor. She meets him secretly on several occasions. The company "Do Armoist" is playing with distant but he decides to remain in the city.

CHAPTER XXV

Mary Frances' protestations to Earl might be taken, by the cynical, as proof of the capabilities of a woman's love for supreme self-sacrifice. Though there is this to be considered: The most thrilling drama, with the most beautiful heroine, does come to an end after three or four acts. The curtain falls. People go home. The most exciting novel, with the most charmingly bewitching heroine, can be read through to its end in three, and shelved, and another one can be begun. Plans were evolved for a girl's camp, chaperoned by Ermintrude's mother, in June. Evenings were lengthened toward tennis and swimming. Mr. and Mrs. Hill had a new car and went for drives after dinner, and took Ermintrude and Ermintrude's friends, and stopped on the way home at thirt stations for milk shakes and hot dogs. But when a true creative artist has laboured long on a masterpiece she hesitates and hates like fury to turn it into a hotch job.

"Sure, I know," Earl rejoined. "But I kind of been thinking—see?

Course, my first idea was to bent it. But I don't know. I got my room rent paid up until the end of next week, and they don't soak you so much for meals around here. I could write a few letters and kind of wait returns, and maybe I could do something in the meantime with those damn—pardon me—educational desks. No—" as Mary Frances attempted an interruption. "Wait, hon, leave me tell you. A couple weeks isn't going to make so much difference one way or the other right now. I was thinking that if I'd stick around awhile maybe you'd feel different about that classy little vaudeville act of ours. Sure, I know," to prevent another attempted interruption, "the idea don't appeal to you so much. But just the same, hon, I know it would go, and go big—see? Big! Course, if you had a happy home life here or anything—but you ain't see? And then you being so crazy about me and all. And you mean a lot to me, too—see? And I'm giving that to you straight—" and so on.

It made excellent material to present to Ermintrude the following day. "He says he knows he isn't worthy to touch the pathway where my feet have trod. His professional career—nothing amounts to anything to him in comparison to our love for one another. He simply won't leave me, Ermintrude. I brought him to, but I mean too much to him, he says. He says I'm 'woman and child in one.' If I'll go with him, he'll go anywhere. Anywhere. But if I refuse, he'll stay right here by my side, and give up his professional career, and take any miserable, lowly work he can find rather than leave me. If I'll go with him—" "Go with him! Mary Frances Fenwick, honest, lately I think you are just going cuckoo or something. Go with him! Well, I guess your grandma and grandpa and your sisters might have just a little something to say about you going with him."

"Well, who said I was going with him? I must say, Ermintrude—" "Well, you talk about it all the time. All the time."

"I do not. Last Wednesday I just barely told you that he was beseeching me to. And yesterday and to-day I just barely mentioned it again. Of course, if you don't want me to tell you anything at all, anymore, why, I won't. Of course—" "I don't care if you tell me," said Ermintrude. "Only I do kind of think you've got this Earl awfully on the brain. If I talked about Peter every living minute of the day and night, you'd get sick of it, too, I'll bet. I guess maybe I love Peter as much as you love your old Earl, but I certainly haven't got him on the brain."

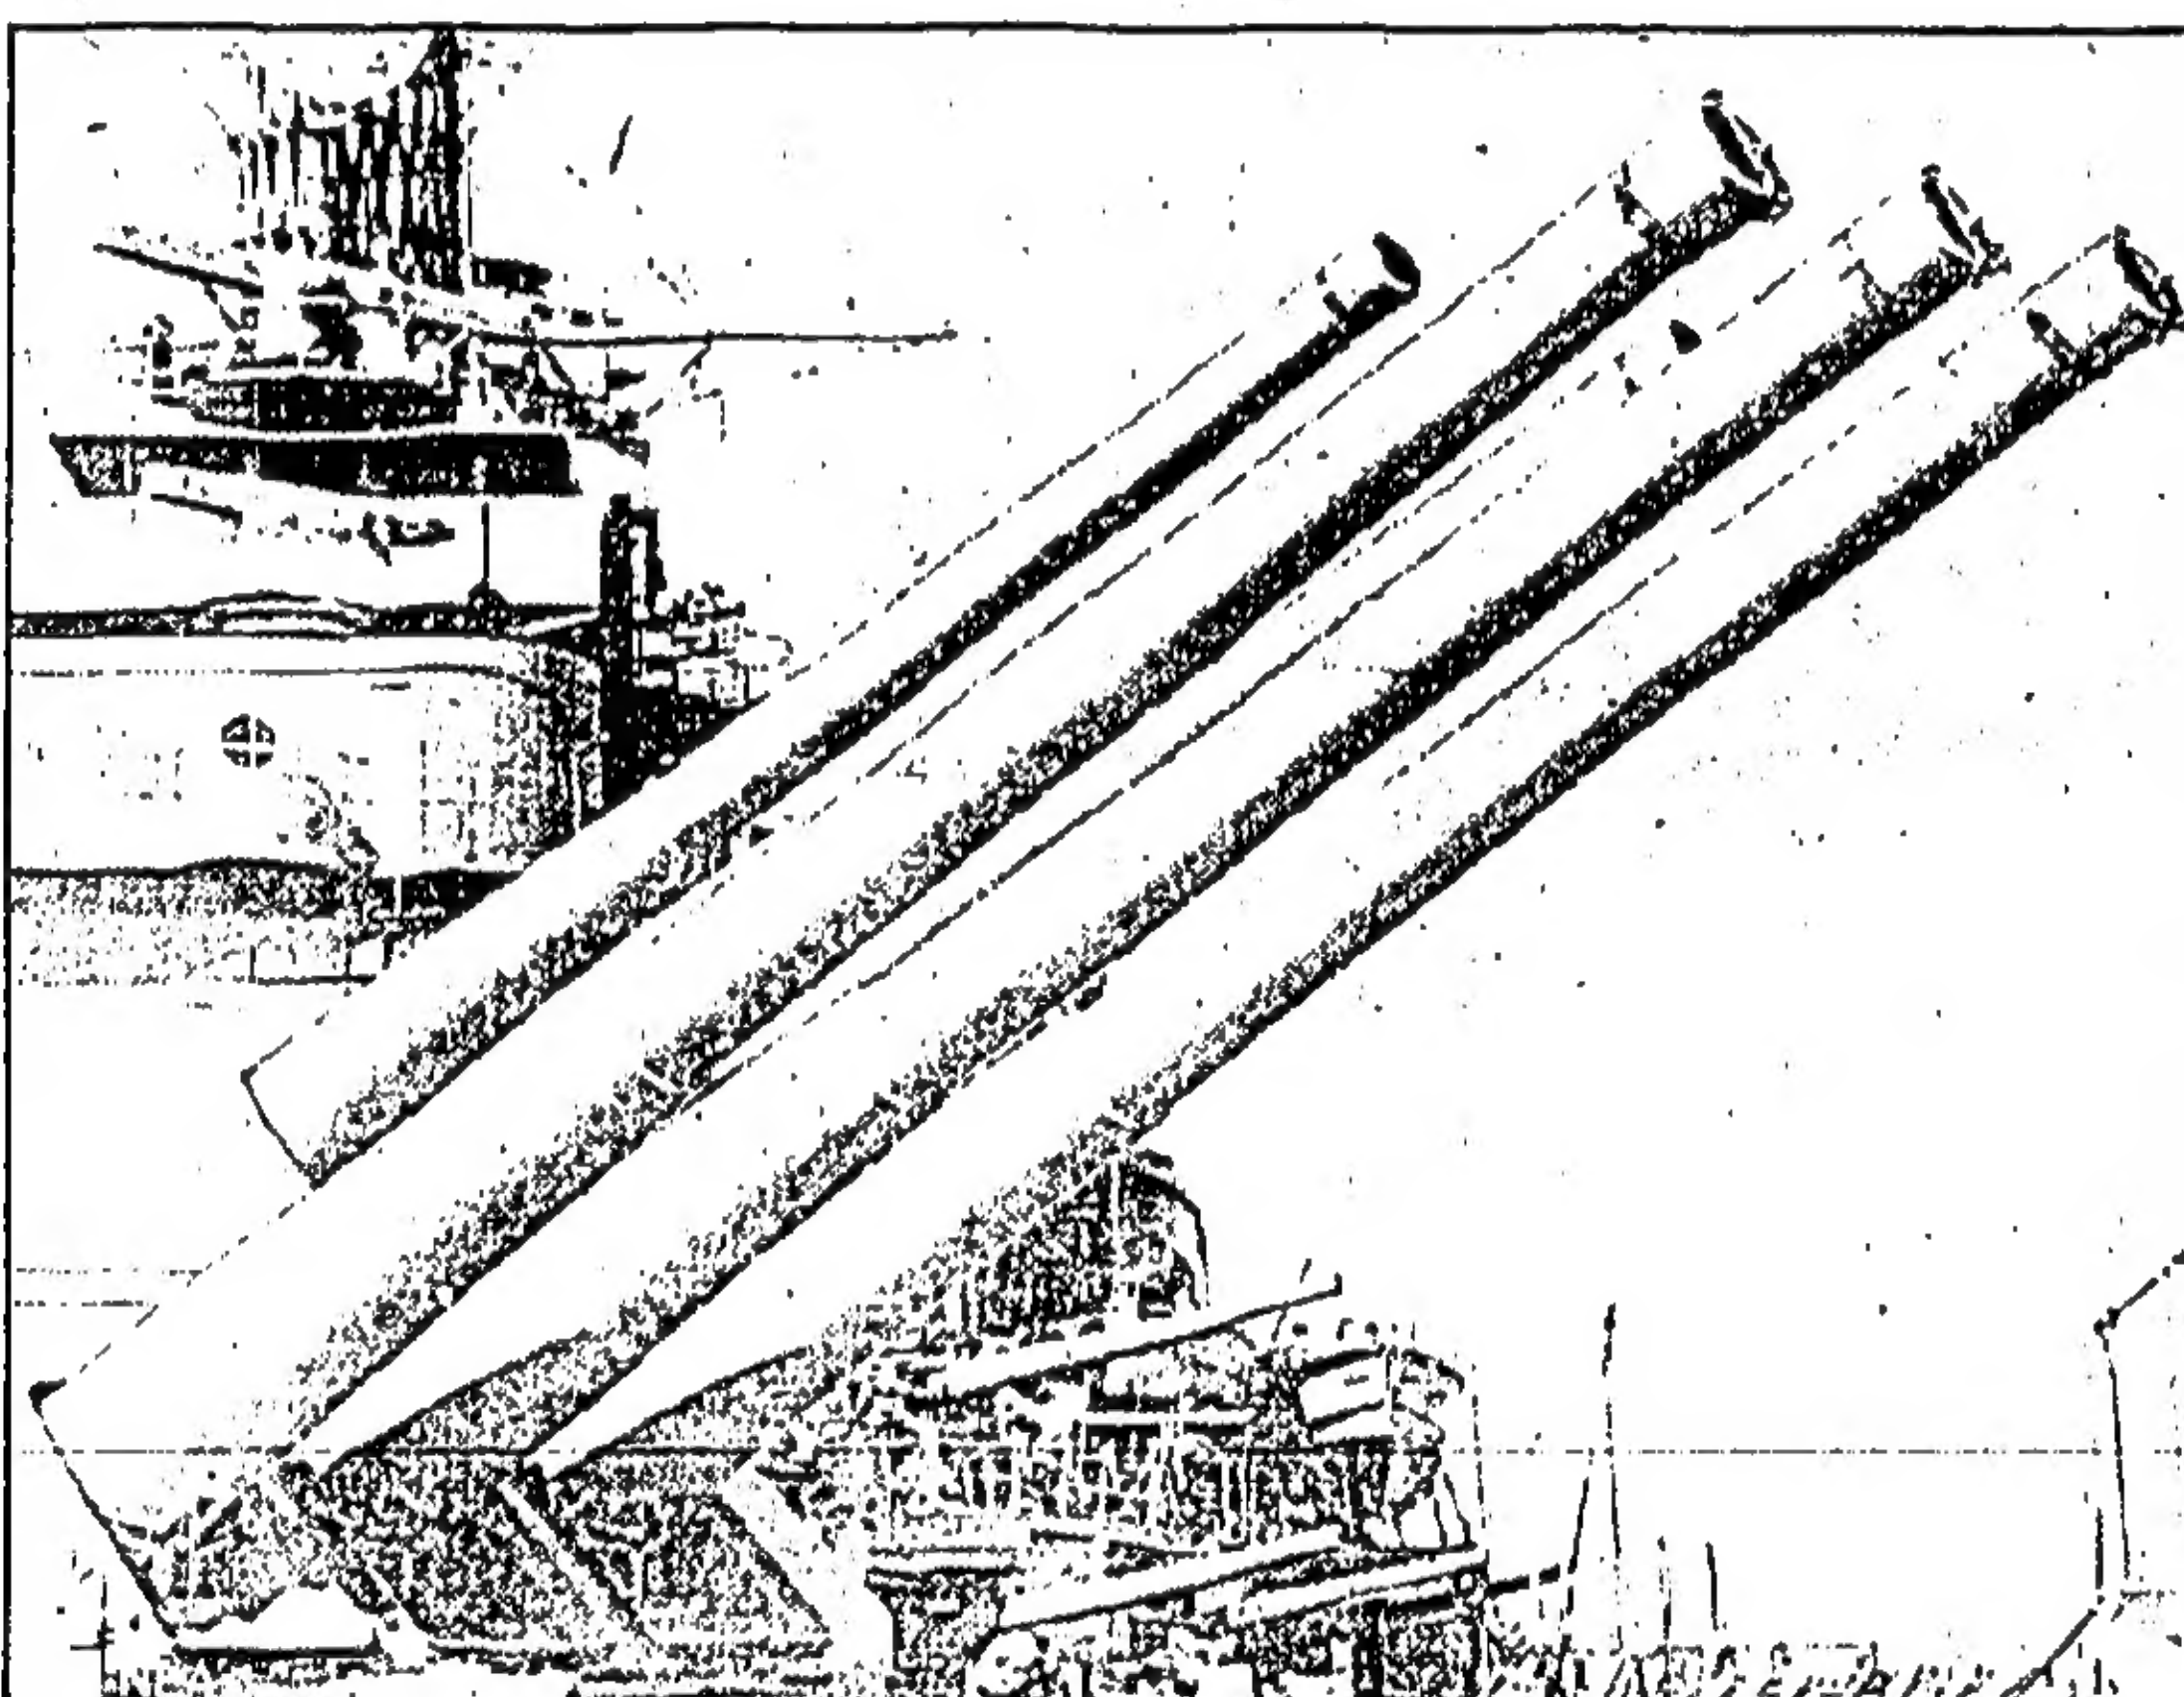

"Peter!" said the outraged Mary Frances. "Why, Ermintrude Hill! Are you still thinking about Peter Morrison? Just because he asked you to his birthday party the first one, and wrote a note to you the next day, and gets red when he meets you on the street? That's different. That's just childish—that's all that is. Childish. You don't know the first thing about real, true, deep, passionate love such as ours."

Startlingly Ermintrude replied, "Oh, I don't know as you know so much about love, either," and pointed her chin out provocatively. It was Saturday morning. They were walking to the store to do some marketing for Ermintrude's mother. Mary Frances stopped, stood still. "Well, if I don't," she demanded, "who does?" "Older people, I guess," said Ermintrude, and tried to mask iconoclasm, flagrant, with insouciance. "Older people!" Mary Frances, shaken, lunged it from her. "Come on. We got to hurry, mother said. Mother said," continued Ermintrude, as if by chance, and happening to be on the subject of mother, anyway, "that younger people didn't. Last night Mrs. Matteson had to go over town to see her daughter-in-law to borrow a couple of covers for her bridge tables this afternoon, so we took her over in the new car. And she was worrying about her grandchildren, the twins, and she said modern girls didn't regard love right, or something."

"I don't remember just what she said. I was riding in front with daddy and not supposed to be listening. And mother said something, and Mrs. Matteson said they didn't understand about real love, and mother said she guessed they did as much as the girls of her period had, or even Mrs. Matteson's period. And Mrs. Matteson said why, or what did mother mean?" And mother said she was becoming more and more convinced that people had to have been married 10 years, at least, and had a baby or two, and maybe even lost one (she was thinking about my little brother, Danny, I guess), before they even began to suspect the meaning of love, let alone understand it or know the first thing about it."

Mon. Tues. Wed.

3 SHADES WHITER

New Technique
Actually Whitens Teeth

If you really care what others think, start at once to use the new, approved Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Quickly and surely it kills the germs of Bacterial-Mouth which are the cause of ugly, discolored, decayed teeth and unhealthy gums.

Place a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush. It multiplies 25 times, becomes a cleansing, antiseptic FOAM which gets into every crevice, pit and fissure. Millions of dangerous mouth germs are killed, fermenting food particles removed, acids neutralized, gums made healthier and firmer, and best of all, teeth made whiter.

Kolynos is different, different in action—different in result. Try one half-inch on a dry brush, and in just three days you will have your proof of this new and amazing method.

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

SOME OF THE NEW SPRING MILLINERY.

Milady can choose wide brims, close fitting hats or any other type of millinery she fancies this spring and summer, providing crown trimming is used. Here are four new western styles: Above Monte Cristo straw, after Rose Descart, is of white straw. Its grosgrain band has a subtle eon feather with a touch of red. Right—a straw-green feather curl atop this Roma Crystal tam indicates tendency to high crown trim. Below this model after Tabot has white Romney body, with upturned brim bound in grosgrain ribbon. A smart nose will complement its chicness. Right, the Mitzi-seller, a shallow tam, fills over the right eye at a peccant angle. A white velvet pony peeps from beneath the high side brim.

DIET AND VITAMINS.

[By a Family Doctor.]

It is not sufficient for the health of the body that we eat merely enough food; we have to eat enough of the right sort of food. In addition to water and various chemical salts the bulk of an ordinary diet is made up of three types of food. First, there is the protein, a highly complex substance out of which the living tissues are built. There are endless varieties of protein and those in our diet are derived from such things as meat, eggs, fish, milk and vegetables. Secondly, there is the fat which we consume in the form of butter, cream, meat fat and vegetable fats. Thirdly, there is the carbohydrate, sugar, bread, cake, potatoes.

Now at one time it was thought that if only our diet contained a reasonable assortment of these three types of food, together with sufficient water and salt, all must be well. In recent years, however, this theory was discovered to be fallacious and it was found that there were certain other substances in the absence of which the health of the body could not be maintained. These substances are known as vitamins. We are ignorant of the precise way in which they act, but we do know what symptoms develop if they are absent from the diet and how even a minute trace of them when added to the diet will cause those symptoms to disappear.

Fortunately the vitamins are pretty widely distributed in natural foods, so that we are unlikely to suffer from their absence from our diet if only we will eat plenty of fresh food. The danger is if we begin embarking on a strict diet of our own invention, or if we try to live almost entirely on tinned foods, or, finally, if we feed our infants solely on artificially prepared foods.

LEATHER POLISHERS.

Housewives will appreciate the new chamois leather polisher, which gives a much better polish than the ordinary squares of leather, and are simpler to work. The polishers are made in the shape of a shoe brush, with a wooden top, and scrolls of leather are arranged in holes in the wood just as bristles are arranged in a brush.

AGELESS FASHIONS.The Dangerous Line.

The new Paris fashions are ageless. They are not directed solely towards enhancing flaming flappers. Plenty of understudy styles are on the tapis, but the great aim and ambition of the French dress-makers is to clothe with grace and beauty their best clients—the mature women of the world.

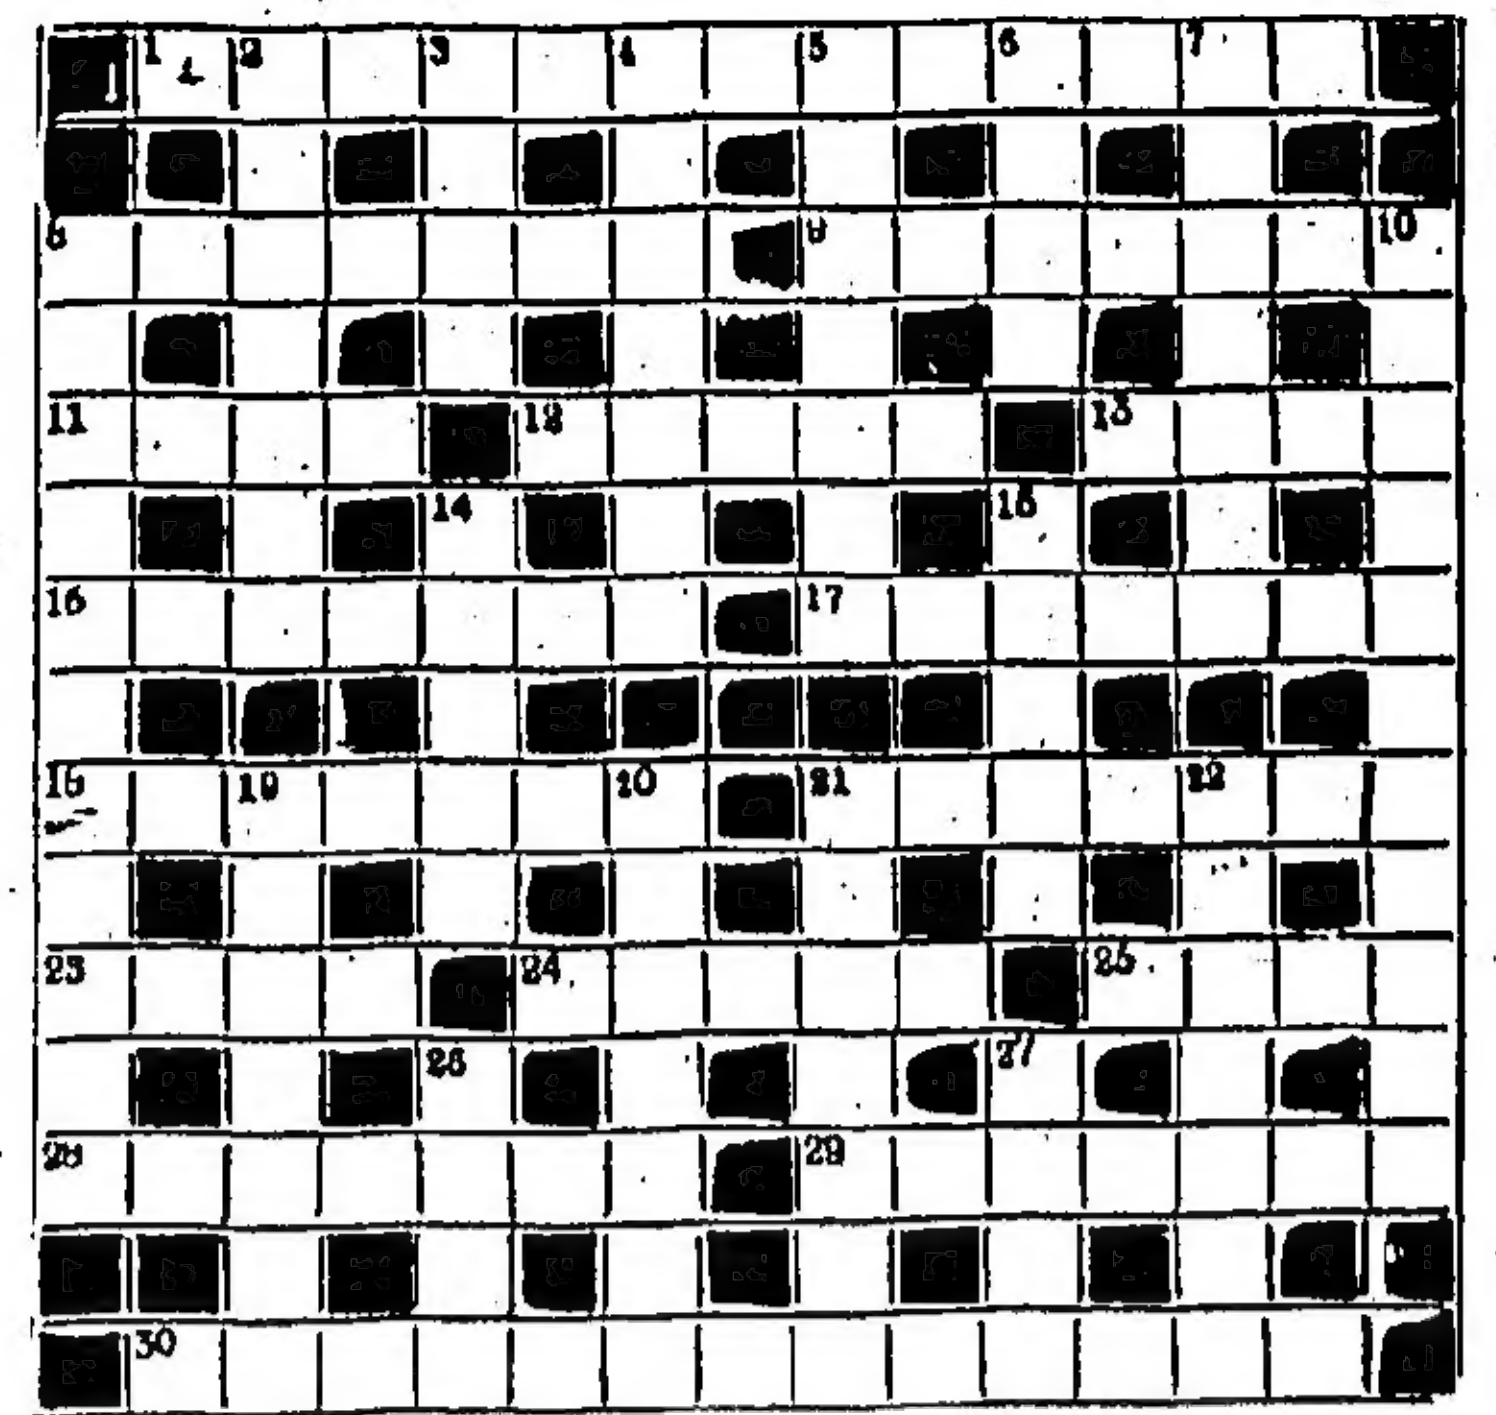

A dangerous line for middle age is the waistline. Anything in dress or coat that makes this line pronounced in bold terms is to be avoided. The short coat and jacket should be banned from all after-forty wardrobes. The long, unbelted coat is even smarter, and the tailored jacket that in wrist and finger-tip length is quite as smart as the short jacket and the bolero, both of which are forbidden fruit for the mature figure.

Skirts, too, are kind to the middle-aged figure, for they are most fashionable when they are only flared by cozes, and the suit blouse falls over the top of the skirt, thus covering up the deadly waistline.

One piece daytime dresses are longer, and this length flatters the dignity of the mature. These dresses, whether they be wool or silk, may do without belts or other waistline indicators, and they are softened at neck and sleeves by dainty ruchings, jabots, and collars and cuffs that complement the wearer of any age. Long sleeves are as chic as short ones, and are chosen by all the after-forties who have not proscribed young looking arms and shoulders.

A Dainty Gown.

The above gown is of white chiffon with unusual novelty pleating, and wide girdle and shoulder straps of glinting woven brilliants.

DIPLOMATIC USAGE: A CONTRAST.

The difficulties which America and Britain, with her colleagues on the League, have had in coming to a working agreement in regard to the Sino-Japanese conflict are not entirely, nor we suspect, fundamentally due to a difference of policy. We think that the matter goes deeper. America has not yet wrought out a recognizable technique of political and diplomatic usage. It may be that she is attempting to arrive at one, and that in the meantime she does not wish to be hampered by the European tradition. The net result at present is that there tends to be inevitable friction.

The Stimson policy as laid down in the note of January 7th might have won British assent if there had not been grave precedent for doubt as to whether it could, when the time came, be implemented. It necessarily has a nebulous appearance, and the precedents referred to would warrant the view that other nations in subscribing to it might find themselves, in virtue of the traditions of their foreign office procedure, committed further than a future American Government. It has been explained from the British side that commitments already formed with the League precluded independent action. Those commitments, moreover, led towards a definite policy, evolved step by step. It must be acknowledged, however, that the feasibility even of this policy might become doubtful in view of economic realities and the fact that the League itself, though proceeding on the lines of traditional diplomatic methods, has to work out a new technique of international action. The American declaration, if it could have come from a Government as able to implement its policy as the British Government, would have ensured freedom of action, and avoided the absurdity of giving even the most formal sanction to the deplorable happenings in Manchuria. But the trouble lies with the nature of American procedure. This is limited largely by the peculiar safeguards of the Constitution though partly also by the incurable "freshness". If we may use the expression, of American diplomacy.

The matter is most easily reduced to its concrete terms by asking what are the respective relations of Mr. Stimson and Mr. Borah to the foreign policy of the country. Mr. Stimson is the head of the State Department in the Cabinet of the President. He announces the policy of the American Government, or of his Department. His policy is not presented to the Legislature, nor is he responsible to it. He need not defend his policy in the Legislature nor is he himself a member of that body. Only when he wants to pass a Bill, or to gain sanction for a foreign treaty, does he come into direct contact with it. Mr. Borah is the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate. That Committee constantly concerns itself with affairs, and its Chairman frequently voices his opinions. But his opinions have no necessary relation to the policy of the Government. He speaks without the responsibility of office, and there have been a number of occasions in recent years when it would almost seem as if his opinions were representative of no-one but himself. There is apparently no adequate means of co-ordinating the views of the State Department and the Foreign Relations Committee. The consequence is that not only is Government continually hampered by the doubt as to whether its policy will ultimately be endorsed by the Legislature, or, as in the inception of the League of Nations itself, be turned down, but the members of the Committee, in ignorance of the real facts of the case, may seriously embarrass the negotiations which the Government may have in hand. For the Committee, unless the Government transmit papers to it, which often may be impossible, knows no more than the man-in-the-street what is going on, and has not yet learnt, or so it appears to the foreign onlooker, when it is wise to trust the Government and keep silent. No wonder then that foreign Governments scarcely know how to deal with the American State Department. Where really does it stand?

And behind this anomalous relationship of the Executive and the Legislature is the President, who at any moment may turn down his Secretary and scratch the whole of his policy. He again may be watching the great American democracy, holding, as did President Wilson, that it is necessary to wait till it is ready before taking action. The system of safeguards which the founders of the American Constitution so ably drew up works, it might be contended, well inside the nation. It presents formidable difficulties in the formation and making of a foreign policy, and in the carrying out of diplomatic negotiations with other nations, which require care, delicate handling, or flexibility.

Praise to the Accent.

There is said to be a greater uniformity of speech and accent among all classes of society in England at the present day than there has ever been before. This disappearance of the accent from linguistic currency, hastened by the spread of education, increased facilities for travel, and the national standard set up by the British Broadcasting Company, arouses mixed emotions. Some persons, who see in a man's accent only an undesirable badge indicating his social position, welcome it, while others consider that its passing takes with it a colour and a variety that English speech can ill afford to lose. Many will feel that the latter are right. Differences in accent spring from so many other causes than class distinctions that their offensiveness in this respect is small. But, on the score of vividness, and colour, and character, one can well sympathize with the complaint of the youngest son in St. John Ervine's "The First Mrs. Fraser," that his father has taken from him his rugged and distinctive Scottish accent for the featureless uniformity of speech acquired in the halls and playing fields of Oxford. Moreover, if in future all Englishmen are to communicate their ideas to each other through the medium of the same system of noises, what particular system of noises are they all to adopt? Which accent is the correct one? Is the short "a," for example, or the broad "a" proper? The New English Dictionary says the latter, but the British Broad-

WHO IS TO BLAME?

By the BISHOP of NORWICH.

If God is Almighty, why is the world so miserable?

This question is not generally asked with a simple desire to trace the two parallel lines of the power and the love of God, but in a spirit of fault-finding against God—with the idea that He ought to be doing better than He does.

To hear some people, talk you would suppose that they could run the world much more successfully, if they had their chance. We know a good many of these people during the war—armchair critics we called them.

The Same Puzzle.

One of the difficulties of replying to these questions about God and His providence is that they can be put in a few words, like a riddle. But the answer must be a much bigger affair, for the subject is large, and people will not wait to hear the rejoinder. They will speak of the ways of God with no greater depth of thought than they would give to a man who had made a mess of some small business.

We can only see a very little bit of God's whole work, and that for a very little time. We are like a fly in a crack of one of the columns of St. Paul's Cathedral that should attempt to give its opinion on the architecture of the whole. We do not see enough to be in a position to criticise. But there is some light to guide us, and Bishop Butler long ago warned us of the folly of rejecting the guidance of such light as we have because we would like it to be brighter. No man would be so foolish as to refuse the full light of the moon to help him to pick his steps on a dark night on the moor just because he would prefer the moonlight sun to be shining. This puzzle is nothing new. The war and its aftermath have not created new difficulties; they have only shown up some old ones in a larger size.

It is no discovery of our own clever days that God's ways are past finding out. It was often said in the war, "He or she has lost his or her faith"; but was it a faith that was much worth keeping if it could only stand strains, or if it was only equal to facing the troubles that had so far fallen upon other people? "Now it is come upon thee, and thou faintest." The scale of the working out of the puzzle may be greater in our own times, but the puzzle has been the same from the beginning of human history.

Mankind's Choice.

Next, we cannot justly attribute to God all the evil in the world. When God gave mankind the gift of free will, He gave to men and women the chance of choosing good or bad. And certainly individuals and nations have constantly chosen very badly; and have only themselves to thank for the consequent misery. God does not force people to do what is right; and by doing wrong they often set out on the road to evil, sorrow, and pain.

Before men blame God, let them be sure that they themselves, or other misguided and perverse people, are not to blame for the larger part of their misfortunes.

Self-Will.

This thought of man's self-will and of the way he has spoiled the world which God gave him as a home of righteousness and beauty

does not, of course, cover all the ground; the whole subject of the origin and progress of evil in the world is too big to be treated incidentally in one short article. But these considerations do go a long way to explain the apparent contradiction between God's Almightyness and His loving kindness.

Perhaps it is the misrepresentation of the God of the Old Testament which partly causes the trouble. The God of the Old Testament is sometimes regarded as unforgiving and tyrannical. But without discussing the mistakes in such a view we may remember the bit of truth in what the child said, "Oh, that God is dead!" For it is the God of the New Testament with whom we are concerned.

You have to look at the best idea you can get of God's ways and will. You find that in the perfect life of Him Who in a human life among men showed what God is like. There you see in their perfection sympathy and love, and kindness and compassion, and nobility and helpfulness. No one who came to Him in the right spirit was ever disappointed. He lived for His friends; He laid down His life for them. His ways we can understand. If the world had followed them it would have been a happier kind of place.

"His Own Interpreter."

If we are satisfied that He was nearer to the mind of God and understood His will better than we can, then we may take His estimate. His representation of God. And He spoke of God as supreme and as a Father, who cares for His children, and takes thought even for the little ones, for the lilies of the field and the sparrows of the town. With such light already thrown by Him upon our puzzle, we make a great mistake to allow what we do not know to rob us of what we do know. We can be prepared to wait for the day when we shall know all. "Now we see through a glass (i.e., only by reflections in a mirror) darkly; but then face to face."

If we can trust the God Whom the Master has shown us, we can leave the rest. We may not yet be able to explain it all to our minds. But our hearts will be content, and be ready to say with Cowper the poet:

Blind unbelief is sure to err
And scan His works in vain,
God is His own interpreter,
And He will make it plain.

PHIPPS among THE TOUGH GUYS.

Guy's Hospital operated successfully on St. Bartholomew's Hospital at Richmond, removing the latter's hopes of the Hospitals Rugby Cup without an anaesthetic. Guy's collected eleven points (2 tries and a goal) from their patients, who made no reply. They're tough, Guy's.

The trail to Richmond was easy to pick up. It had been unwise with flour. It appears that when one medical student is annoyed with another, nothing in the world relieves his feelings like unloading a bag of the best self-raising over the source of his annoyance.

Several hundred students must have relieved their feelings on the way to Richmond, judging by the Arctic appearance of the district.

Floury Language.

The football was distinguished rather for enthusiasm than finesse. The ball frequently played Cinderella, while the players were apparently trying to establish a practice on the spot.

In the meantime, exceedingly floury language proceeded from the touchline, where community slinging had broken out afresh. Above the din I could distinguish:

"B-A-R-T-S—BARTS!"
And then an answering gurgle of:
"GUY-UY-UY-UY-UY!"

Guy's early established an ascendancy. Bart's were not taking their passes too well, but Guy's looked as if they took them three times a day after meals. It was not long before P. C. Alexander, getting the ball after a scrum, walked through the Bart's defence in a positively besides manner. The try was not converted.

Half-time. Consultations on both sides.

The second half brought the mixture as before—both teams going at it hammer and forceps. Guy's scored another try. Would they convert? Several hundred supporters took their pulse. Guy's converted. Several hundred supporters said "Ah!"

A final try for Guy's settled it. The spectators finished their flour and departed.

"What, no umbrellas? What kind of a drug store is this?"

TELEPHONE CO'S EXPANSION.

DEVELOPMENTS IN NEW TERRITORY.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Two automatic exchanges at Taipo Market and Fanling were opened about the middle of this year, declared the Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie, presiding at the annual meeting of the Hongkong Telephone Company this morning. The Company's policy in the matter of telephone extension to other rural areas would be influenced by the support, he stated.

The annual report commented on the progress of the Company, and the statement of accounts revealed a satisfactory year.

Mr. Mackie said:—Gentlemen, the report of your Directors and statement of accounts for the financial year ending December 31, 1931, having been in your hands for the prescribed period, I will, with your permission, follow the usual procedure, and take them as read.

The Auditor's report is as follows:—"We have audited the books, accounts and vouchers of the Company monthly for the year ended December 31, 1931, and have obtained all the information and explanations we have required. We have also conducted an audit of the share transfers and registers of the company throughout the year and have found same in order. In our opinion, the balance sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of affairs of the Hongkong Telephone Company, Limited, as at December 31, 1931, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the Company, Lowe, Bingham & Matthews, Chartered Accountants, Auditors, Hong Kong, February 11, 1932."

Increased Royalties.

Turning to the accounts, you will observe by referring to the debit side of Profit and Loss Account that the amount payable to Government in respect of royalties for the year under review was $39,588.00, being $4,129.00 in excess of that paid for the previous year and represents a very substantial contribution of public funds.

Consulting Engineer's fees show an increase of $3,505.94, which is due principally to the low rate of sterling exchange ruling during the year as the charge to your Company in this connection is in sterling.

Referring to the credit side of Profit and Loss Account, you will observe that the profit for the year was materially augmented as a result of sales of obsolete stores and plant, and your Company has now disposed of all the magnet equipment which became obsolete with the change-over to automatic working. In the circumstances, the receipts from this source, though of a non-recurring nature, have been particularly helpful during the year under review in affecting a certain extent the higher working costs occasioned by the low sterling value of the Hong Kong dollar.

Provision has been made for the payment of the usual bonus to European staff, which I have no doubt will be approved by shareholders, in view of the very satisfactory results obtained during the period under review, coupled with which much additional and, if I may say so, most satisfactory service was rendered in the matter of the installation and bringing into operation of the Trunk Line to Canton.

Bigger Reserves.

On the liabilities side of the balance sheet, you will observe that (subject to your approval of your Directors' recommendation that $50,000.00 be appropriated thereto) general reserve accounts will reach a figure of $325,000.00 which sum is represented on the accounts side of the Balance Sheet by sound investments. You will be pleased to note the appreciation of the latter, as well as of the depreciation fund investments, as shown by the comparison between the cost of the investments and the market value as at 31st December, 1931.

A call of $2.50 per share on the partly paid shares of the Company amounting to $900,000.00 was made on December 21, 1931, as it had been found necessary during the year to go into overdraft to meet payments in respect of the instalment due on the purchase of the automatic Exchange Equipment and to finance the cost of recurrent capital expenditure in the matter of obtaining supplies of underground cables and instrument plant for the normal developments of your undertaking. As a result the overdraft has been retired during the financial period and, in addition, payment in the amount of $428,187.27 was made for the British Section of the Hongkong Canton Trunk Cable. In the circumstances and having regard to the heavy expenditure met, I think you will agree that the cash position, as indicated by the Balance Sheet, cannot but be regarded as eminently satisfactory.

Further Expansion.

The calling up of the additional capital, to which I have just referred and which ranks for dividend as from January 1, 1932, will necessitate an increase in earnings for the year 1932 if the present rate of distribution is to be maintained, and every endeavour will be made to effect this result by further expansion of your business rather than by resorting to an increase in subscription rates.

My predecessor in the Chair has on several occasions commented on the advisability of obtaining Government's approval for increasing the amount of the annual appropriation to general reserve, and I would take this opportunity of expressing my concurrence in such views, more particularly having regard to the rapid growth of your Company's undertaking.

It is gratifying to me to be able to report that the year under review has shown a record expansion of your business, resulting in the connecting up of 1,451 additional exchange lines as compared with 628 for the previous year. This development can, I think, be attributed to the excellence of the service given to subscribers, coupled to the low subscription rates charged for such service.

Satisfactory Service.

The automatic system has now been in operation for nearly two years and I think you will agree that, notwithstanding the adverse effect of climatic conditions and the resultant difficulties experienced with a highly technical and extremely delicate installation, the introduction of this system has been an unqualified success, a fact borne out by the exceedingly low ratio of complaints.

The unpaid instalments still due on the automatic exchange equipments amount to £19,668. 0. 8, but under the contract conditions £12,827. 13. 0 of this sum will be paid in May, 1932, after which the amount outstanding will be reduced to a very low figure, representing the amount of the final instalment which is payable in May, 1933. This method of payment for plant, namely, by instalment against satisfactory performance, has proved most satisfactory as, apart from the assurance of the proper functioning of the plant, having regard to the fact that in the matter of installation of exchange equipment provision must be made covering several years' growth with the result that a considerable portion of such equipment must remain non-revenue earning for several years, the Company is, as a result of such arrangement, enabled to defer the major portion of the capital outlay involved until such time as the equipment commences to become productive.

New Exchanges.

The rapid extension of your business will necessitate in the near future the installation of additional Exchange equipments both in Hongkong and in Kowloon, and your Directors have already given instructions for specifications to be drawn up and tenders called for, in which relation it is expected that the limit of the capacity of the existing Exchange equipments will be reached towards the end of next year and, in keeping with the progressive policy which your Company has adopted since its inception, it is proposed that the additional Exchange equipments should be ready for service before that time.

As you are aware, trunk telephone service between Hongkong and Canton was established on September 1, 1931, when His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., in conjunction with the Provincial Governor of Kwangtung, Mr. Lam Wen-ko, performed the inaugural ceremony. All who have had occasion to speak to Canton must have been impressed with the clarity of the speech transmission and the rapidity with which connection is made between these two Cities.

Canton Line Success.

Great interest is being shown in the service and, although this has only been in operation for several months, the returns indicate a steady increase in the traffic handled, and I am confident that the success of the project is already assured; furthermore, the linking up of Hongkong and Canton by telephone must have a very beneficial influence on the trading and social relationships of those Cities which will eventually be extended to embrace other centres in China as the trunk telephone network in the latter country is increased.

The question of developing telephone service in the New Territories has engaged the attention of your Directors, who have approved the installation of two small Automatic Exchanges at Taipo Market and Fanling which, it is hoped, will be ready for service

ALLEGED CHILD CRUELTY.

FATHER CHARGED IN COURT.

A charge of cruelty and ill-treatment of a four-year-old child was alleged against Lo Kwan, 8, Gresson Street, on his appearance before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning, Mr. R. C. Wilkinson (Assistant Secretary for Chinese Affairs), prosecuting.

Evidence was given by a fellow-tenant to the effect that the child was continually beaten by the defendant and his wife, and was made to sit on a spittoon or sleep on cold pieces of board. It would scream once or twice but would not dare to cry for long. On occasions, witness would suddenly arrive at the house from office to find the child being beaten, and as soon as the defendant saw witness he would pretend to be playing with the child.

Witness said the parents would try to make the child walk, but when it refused it would be beaten.

Corroborative evidence was given by a woman tenant. Both witnesses, under cross-examination denied that they had a quarrel with the defendant. The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

about the middle of 1932. Your Company's policy in the matter of extension of telephone service to other rural areas will be influenced by the support which it receives in connexion with the two new Exchanges referred to, as whilst your Company is prepared to accept an initial loss in the development of rural areas, it must see some prospect of such services becoming profitable within a reasonable period of time.

Cables Laid Down.

In order to be in a position immediately to meet orders for the installation of telephone service, your Company has laid down during the year under review 3,293.426 circuit miles of underground cables and covered distribution, and it is worthy of note that there must be very few telephone Administrations where such a large percentage of the Subscribers' lines is served entirely by underground cables.

There being no further matters calling for comment, I now beg formally to propose that the Report of the Directors and the Accounts for the Financial Year ending December 31, 1931, as presented, be adopted, and that the following appropriations, recommended by your Directors, as incorporated in the balance sheet, be carried into effect, namely:—

Payment of a Final Dividend of 6%, making a total of 10% for the year, $192,000; Transfer to General Reserve, bringing same up to $225,000, $50,000; entry forward to next Account, $63,840.00.

Report Adopted.

The report and accounts, being seconded by Mr. D. H. Blake, were adopted unanimously.

On the proposal of Mr. Wong Ping-shun, seconded by Mr. Ezra Abraham, Sir Shou-sun Chow and Mr. D. H. Blake were re-appointed Directors.

Mr. J. H. Rutledge proposed the re-appointment of Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews as auditors, at a fee of $3,400 a year. Mr. D. Tollen seconded, and the resolution was carried.

GENEVA WHITE ELEPHANT.

GRANDIOSE PALACE OF PEACE.

Geneva, Feb. 12. The Palace of Peace—that is to be is meeting with evil days even before it is erected.

The blast of financial distress which has frozen funds and credits in every country has reached Geneva and stopped the growth of this grandiose project.

The League's coffers are empty and the full flow of subscriptions from States members has dwindled to a mere trickle from a few Governments which are still anxious to honour their obligations. The first therefore has gone forth; cease work on the Assembly Hall, the imposing central piece of the whole Palace, but carry on, if possible, with the building of the Secretariat and the Library.

In its present state of partial construction, the Palace looks like the skeleton of a megalomaniac, although some hundred times bigger, sprawling over the width of Ariana Park. Its steel and concrete frame seems as gruesomely lifeless that it is difficult to imagine it one day as becoming animated.

Through its ribs, gigantic steel "elevators" stand on end to the height of from 150 to 200 feet.

The Palace was ill-fated from its earliest infancy. It is now nearly two-and-a-half years since the foundation stone was laid with the full measure of international solemnity.

USED SERVANT'S TICKET.

TRAM CO. PROSECUTES INDIAN.

On a summons accusing him of using the monthly tram ticket of his servant, an Indian, of 26, Kwok Ahn Street, was fined $10, the maximum penalty under the Section of the Tramway Ordinance, by Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning. A summons against the owner of the ticket was withdrawn.

Mr. A. Gillard, of the Tramway Company, stated that the defendant had used the ticket to deliver milk, as his servant was sick. He had a monthly ticket for January, but on February 1 he went to the office of the Company to buy a ticket for his servant, intimating that he did not require one for himself. The defendant was warned that he would have to pay each time he travelled and could not use the ticket taken out in his servant's name. On the morning of February 16 last he was found by one of the Company's inspectors using the ticket.

EMPIRE TARIFFS.

SOUTH AFRICA'S "NO" TO BRITAIN.

South Africa cannot allow the British tariff changes to make any alteration in the recent duties imposed in South Africa on goods manufactured in Great Britain, in order to prevent dumping after the departure from the gold standard.

This statement was made by Mr. Havenga, the Finance Minister, in the Union House of Assembly in reply to a question whether, in view of Mr. Chamberlain's statement that neither the general nor additional duties would apply to the Dominions pending the Ottawa Conference, the Union Government would suspend the operation of the dumping duties on British goods.

Mr. Havenga said that as these duties were independent and entirely distinct from ordinary Customs duties and preferences, the Union Government saw no way of suspending them.

FANLING HUNT.

POINT-TO-POINT MEETING ON SUNDAY LAST.

A point-to-point meeting was held on Sunday last, at Fanling, in which a number of the best horses of the Colony took part. The racing was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators who witnessed the racing from the "lookout" there were no complaints.

The course was slightly altered from last time, a sharp right handed turn being made just before entering the wood leading to Kam Chai Village, thus cutting out the narrow lane through the trees.

The racing opened with lightweight Foxhunters' cup, which produced a field of eight, and was won by Target well ridden by Mr. Stanton. Mr. Evans on Dempsy getting within three lengths and Jan Stewer, ridden by Mr. Ferguson, who made most of the running, filling third place some length behind.

The Heavyweight Foxhunters, brought out a large field of twelve, which was won fairly comfortably by L. J. W. Hope on Dunes, with Mr. Beaumont on Fox Trot and Mr. Jones riding Tom Colledge filling the places. Carnation Eve, who ran prominently for the first three miles and looked like a winner, broke down and had to be led home very lame.

Six ladies turned out for their race, Miss Lois Pearson, riding Donatella in front style, finished a length in front of Miss Pamela Scott Harrison, with Miss Fier riding the grand old warrior Fernef, another three lengths away. The Navy and Air Force sent out seven; Durham well ridden by Lt. P. S. Francis winning by six lengths from Lt. Conn. G. A. Harrison on Ploughman, with Safety ridden by Lt. Rich third, one length behind.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

FURTHER WINNERS IN OPEN DOUBLES.

The three outstanding matches in the open tennis championships at the Cricket Club ground yesterday, were the open doubles ties, in which Leonard and Cassumbhoy, Hild and Sullivan, Lee Wai-long and Luk Ding-cheong advanced a further stage.

The last-named pair were given a splendid game by H. Lo and Lu Tak-cheuk, who, after losing the first set at 6-4, captured the second to three. In the third, however, Lee and Luk were irresistible and swept away all opposition to win a love set.

Noronha and da Rocha, the Club do Recreio pair, also fully extended Leonard and Cassumbhoy, winning the opening set, but the fine driving of Cassumbhoy and the general astuteness of his partner pulled the Craigswater pair through.

Ride and Sullivan had a fairly easy task in beating Amery and Sloan, and accomplished it in straight sets with the loss of seven games.

Sewell received his first check since playing in the current tournaments, by losing to D. M. MacDougall in the Club Championship after a full-distance encounter.

The day's results were:

Open Doubles—

Lee Wai-long and Luk Ding-cheong beat H. Lo and Lu Tak-cheuk 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Those who roared at Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "The Cuckoos," have bigger laughs ahead in "Half Shot at Sunrise," a wartime comedy which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday.

The story deals with two American soldiers who go A.W.O.L. in Paris during the World War. It is packed with humorous situations in dialogue from the first reel to the last. Wheeler and Woolsey as the doughboys, win new laughing honours with their inimitable clowning. They steal their Colonel's car, his daughter, and his "goats" electrify hundreds of military police, raise everything but the dead, and finally emerge heroes.

The songs, five rollicking ones, were written by Harry Tierney. The settings are the most clever ever seen in a production of this type, including an entire Parisian square and gigantic vistas of No-Man's-Land.

Dance numbers, offering sensational precision routines, are by the Tiller Sunshine Girls, brought from London for the picture. Dorothy Lee plays opposite Wheeler. The picture, directed by Walter Lang, is a production of the Famous Players-Lasker Corporation. It is a comedy of the "war" type, and is a most enjoyable one. It is a production of the Famous Players-Lasker Corporation. It is a comedy of the "war" type, and is a most enjoyable one.

In a role exceeding the dramatic power of his impersonation of the imbricate lawyer in "A Free Soul" and the father in "Gaily, Gaily," Lionel Barrymore, as the insidious head of the Czarist Russian Secret Police in Raoul Walsh's "The Yellow Ticket" will show at the King's Theatre next Friday.

Though Mr. Barrymore is reputed to be a most gentle and kindly individual in private life, one would never think that possible after seeing his relentless and cruel persecution of Elissa Landi, the brilliant Fox star who plays the feminine lead in the picture. So realistic and genuine is his performance that one would believe he took personal delight and satisfaction in his brutal treatment of the defenceless girl, forced into his hateful web of intrigue by circumstances beyond her control.

"The Yellow Ticket" is the first picture in which Miss Landi and Barrymore have played together, and it is admirably suited to the highly dramatic type of acting but stars are noted for. With them is Laurence Olivier, a newcomer from the London and Broadway stage, in the other featured role, Miss Landi's lover. The other players are Walter Hyrone, Sarah Padden, Rita Lay, Mithra Auer, Boris Karloff and Arnold Korff. It is the talking picture version of Michael Morton's play that caused great comment on the Broadway stage several seasons ago. It was adapted by Jules Furthman who also collaborated on the dialogue with Guy Bolton.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a remarkable coincidence, but nevertheless true, that the first dramatic stage role ever secured by William Hopkins was opposite Fredric March, with whom she appears to-day in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," under the direction of Rouben Mamoulian which is the King's Theatre's feature picture to-day.

March himself who just beginning his stage career at the time, and Mr. Hopkins, who had played successfully in musical comedy, wished to get into dramatic work.

Producers offered her musical comedy parts, but they did not consider her dramatic ambitions serious.

Her opportunity finally came when "The Puppets," was about to open in New York. It had been tried out on the road as "The Marquise of M..." with Claudette Colbert and March later Paramount film stars, as the juvenile leads.

Producers, however, sought to change the girl type played as an Italian Miss by Miss Colbert. They wanted a blonde type, and Miss Colbert stepped out of the part for other and future stage and screen fame.

Miss Hopkins was placed in the role and was so successful as the sweetheart of March that she remained in dramatic parts thereafter.

"Son of India." What is the hardest job a studio electrician has to do? According to chief electrician of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, it is the work of lighting up jewels so that they will sparkle on the screen. This work played a prominent part in the technical details of Ramon Novarro's newest picture, "Son of India" which is coming to the Queen's Theatre to-day.

It seems that jewels are so small that in order to make them reflect properly on the screen it is necessary to concentrate a great deal of light on them. This requires special apparatus and skill which are not ordinarily used once a year.

Particular preparation had to be made for an important scene in the picture, in which Novarro, as a Hindu prince, shows his huge collection of pearls, diamonds, rubies and emeralds to Madge Evans, the feminine lead. Hal Rosson, cameraman, not only had to photograph the faces of the principals perfectly but likewise had to show off the beauty of the small gems. The co-ordination of light so that too much would not mar make-up features of the players and too little hide the sparkle of the jewels, made this scene one of considerable difficulty for both cameramen and electricians.

The "Jewel" scene of "Son of India" is one of several unusual episodes in the oriental melodrama. Other interesting features include a hand-to-hand fight and an elephant stampede. The story was adapted by Ernest Valda from F. Marion Crawford's novel, "Mr. Isaacs," and was directed by Jacques Feyder. In the supporting cast are Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Madge Evans, C. Aubrey Smith, and Alfred Hickman.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" is the Universal picture of the week, which comes to the Central Theatre today, numbers in its cast a remarkable array of players. Louis Wolheim, Lewis Ayres and John Wray who also are featured players, among whom also are Raymond Griffith, George "Slim" Sumnerwell, William Bakewell, Walter Browne Rogers, Russell Gleason, Scott Kirk, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis, Jr.

In "The Phantom of Paris," which is the attraction at the Queen's Theatre, Lella Hyams plays her third successive picture with the great lover of the screen, John Gilbert. This is the third time Miss Hyams has been lending lady for Gilbert and there has been no let-up between pictures.

Once again the scintillating blonde actress, who has been playing in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer beauty is to be seen in ravishing gowns, luxurious settings and unusual situations. But upon herself the difficult part of playing first a young girl of a noble family, then a French girl, and later the same girl grown older and married to the unhappy life she has had to endure with her man she does not love.

Natalie Moorhead, the sophisticated blonde, of the streaming evening wraps, languorous stride and ultra-fashionable creations, lends a subtle colour to the vivid film. It is she who forms the key to great intrigue and is the one who insinuates herself into the good graces of the marquis who makes his beautiful wife's existence almost unbearable with his attention to this other woman.

Jan Keth plays the nefarious marquis. His erect bearing, cold and calculating manner that melts to milk if it behooves him to meet his own ends, makes him a villain of first order.

Gilbert is also ably assisted by Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, C. Aubrey Smith, and Alfred Hickman.

Louis Wolheim, Lewis Ayres and John Wray who also are featured players, among whom also are Raymond Griffith, George "Slim" Sumnerwell, William Bakewell, Walter Browne Rogers, Russell Gleason, Scott Kirk, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis, Jr.

degraded as grave-diggers who are always segregated.

Fish "Too Wet?"

A traveller once asked intelligent questions of a fisherman as to how he reconciled the catching of fish with the tenets of his religion. The fisherman explained that he thought the fish were getting too wet so he took them out of the water and laid them on the bank to dry!

Fresh milk is never to be consumed by Burmans because it deprives the calf of its proper food, but Nestle's condensed milk sells better in Burma than anywhere else in the world. It is an elegant and suitable offering to make to a monk.

Interesting Tribes.

Living in Burma, near its borders, mostly in the hills, there are some quite interesting peoples and tribes. The most numerous are the Karens but they are now largely settled in the plains. They are staid and more persevering than the Burmans, less volatile and less light-hearted. In dress and habits they are now hardly distinguishable from the Burmans.

With the Burman the missionary has made little headway, though the former is quite polite to his would-be converter and pleased to discuss Christianity, but it rarely gets beyond that.

Gift for Music.

The Karens, on the other hand, are largely Christians. They have a good deal of folk-lore of their own. In this there is a story of a white man with a book under his arm who was to teach them the truth, so they recognized the missionary at sight. They have a great gift for music and have taken readily to the European style. Their voices are often really beautiful, and Karen choirs will render sacred music, not only hymns, as well as any Western choir.

I do not mean that they only sing sacred music. I have heard Harry Lauder's songs given every ounce of their value by an educated Karen.

Women's Faces Tattooed.

In the North-West are the Chin who tattoo the faces of their women on marriage, so as to make them less attractive to raiding tribes. I should think they achieve their object as the poor things look most repulsive. Their neighbours, the Kachins, blacken the teeth of their women with the same object. The Kachin was recruited during the war by way of experiment. He showed himself a very smart, bright little soldier, very like the Gorkhali in appearance. The same cannot be said of the Burman who will not take soldiering seriously.

The Palangs, a small tribe, seem to admire a swarlike neck in their women, as they bind their necks round with brass rings, adding to these from time to time, till a most formidable brass collar is formed. It is said that when a missionary once persuaded a Palang convert to remove her rings, the poor woman could not hold up her head without them, so they had to be replaced.

The Shans, living in the Shan states, are divided into a good many tribes. They are ruled by Tau-buys, the equivalent of a petty rajah in India, under the career with Earl, or—anything, by that time."

Small dining tables were set out on a tiled terrace, and there were a pool and a fountain and a smooth green lawn, and away in the distance Mount Hood gleamed warm pink against a blue sky.

Ann brought her eyes back from the mountain to look again at Phil, across the table from her. He was handsome and wise and strong and smiling, and he loved her. She smiled, too, and said, "Phil, dear, I adore this place. However did you find it, away out here?"

"A friend of mine told me about it. There's dancing, later, inside, if we care to stay."

"Let's! But—can we? It has been so long since we have danced. How long?"

"Too long. We do get into ruts. Sort of forget about good times to be had, don't we?"

"Perhaps. But during the winter there isn't much to do. We don't care for public dances."

"No. But we could go places and dine, as we're doing this evening, and dance, if—"

"If what?" she asked, but she continued smiling, because she did not know what Phil had begun to say. "If you had the proper things to wear to the better places, or weren't always getting dinner at home, or too tired."

"If we'd plan," he said. We will, after this. We'll have good times this summer, and we'll keep them up next winter. What about it, You Beautiful?"

guidance of British officers.

"Sons of the Lake."

An interesting small Shan tribe near Port Steadman are the people who row with one leg. They are known as luntha, that is, sons of the lake. They are lake dwellers, their houses being built on piles over the water. Their staple diet is fish, obtained mostly by spear-fishing. An luntha, when he goes solo fishing in a small dug-out, finds he can see the fish and spear them more quickly by standing up. To propel his craft, he curls one leg around the paddle which is fixed in a rowlock, steadying the paddle with one hand while the other grasps the spear. The same method is employed in larger dug-outs with several rowers.

Boat Racing.

Boat racing is a very favourite amusement with them. Canoes travel very fast and they get quite a long and powerful stroke. Crews of men and women have been brought down to Mandalay and Rangoon to race against each other for the entertainment of Royal and Vice-Royal visitors. I have not nearly exhausted these tribes, but I do not want to exhaust you. I am sure you would find Burma a fascinating country, and it is not so very difficult to get to from here. I hope what I have said may have roused your interest in it and its people. (Applause.)

The Club's Thanks.

In expressing the Club's thanks to Mrs. Broadbent for her address, Rotarian L.C.F. Bellamy remarked that he had spent three years in Burma but it was so long ago that when he went to a pagoda he did not have to take off his shoes. He added that he had listened care-

DEAN INGE IS BAFFLED.BY QUESTIONS FROM CONGREGATION.Dean Inge, in St. Paul's Cathedral recently answered questions put by members of a congregation
which included clergymen, business girls, City men and people in every walk of life.He complimented them on the number of difficult problems with which they had confronted him.Questions included:
Is God personal or impersonal?
Can we prove the existence of God?Is there a single purpose in Nature? and How are we to face the problem of evil?Really I cannot answer some of these questions satisfactorily," declared the Dean. Points from his replies were:Vera Page.
"There is monstrous injustice
and cruelty and wrong everywhere.
One thinks of such crimes as that of the poor little child who was murdered the other day; to torturous diseases which often attack men who have done nothing to deserve them; of such hideous wrongs as war."A Mortal God.
"If the world is coming to an end, then, if God is organic with the world, as some think, then God must die, too. Surely a God under an end of death is no God."Life on Other Planets.
"There is no evidence of any other purpose in Nature. If other planets are inhabited by intellect beings who need redemption a million light years away
from us, how can there be any connection between their career and ours?"Dean Inge said that the child pictured God as an old man with a beard, sitting on a throne somewhere in space that we could go to
in an aeroplane if we knew the way,
but God could not be a person in the sense that we were persons.AN EFFECT OF THE WORLD CRISIS.CABLE AND WIRELESS NOT TO HAVE NEW HOME.London, Mar. 8.
Owing to the adverse effect of the world crisis on the revenues of its associated company, Imperial International Communications, which entailed a drastic readjustment of arrangements, Cable and Wireless, Limited, has decided not to occupy its magnificent new building just erected on Victoria Embankment.A substantial building was demolished in order to clear the site for the new premises, which present an imposing appearance in the Temple district.The decision thus brings into the market one of London's modern buildings, which was designed by the Royal Academician, Sir Herbert Baker.—Reuter.JAPANESE ISSUE

CONCENTRATION.

NANKING PANIC.

Shanghai, Mar. 8, 10.15 p.m.
General Shirakawa has issued a statement warning the Chinese against concentrating troops in the region of the Japanese front line.He states that the Chinese forces are constructing new defence positions near Meili and Kunshan, and are concentrating troops there, very near to the Japanese patrol line, and warns
them that if Chinese detachments should enter that line, the Japanese "cannot warrant the impossibility of a clash," also adding that should trouble arise the Chinese must bear responsibility.—
Reuter Special.Panic at Nanking.
Nanking, Mar. 8.
Wild reports that Japanese forces had occupied Kunshan and were marching up the railway towards Nanking, caused the evacuation of many people from here today.All the outgoing steamers are loaded to capacity with passenger.

The State Council, presided over by Mr. Wang Ching-wei, has decided to call a National Emergency Conference at Loyang
on April 1. Reuter Special.Health Menace.
Shanghai, Mar. 8.
Hundreds of people continue to apply for passes to enter the North Szechuen Road areas.Most of those who have obtained passes have removed their belongings but a few are returning to live there.The appalling sanitary conditions in Shanghai, particularly at some points in proximity to the Settlement boundaries, present a menace to the health of the Settlement as no efforts have yet been made to clean up the district.Unless sanitation work is commenced shortly it is possible that the Municipal Council will undertake the work and be forced to function temporarily in Chapel.Meanwhile it is hoped that the Chinese authorities will act. If they continue to be indifferent the Council will be compelled to take action officially, Mr. Fessenden has stated.—Our Own Correspondent.Chinese Feeler.

restore "the status quo ante," with special reference to public safety and sanitation in Chapel, says
an official report, Mayor Wu Te-chen has notified the JapaneseBRITISH NAVAL ESTIMATES.THIS YEAR'S THE LOWEST
SINCE 1913.London, Mar. 8.
"We desire that the Fleet shall be a menace to no-one but it would be a disaster to the world if the British Navy were unable to fulfil its function properly," declared
First Lord of Admiralty, Sir B.
Eyre Monnell, in presenting the Navy estimates in the House of Commons."There can be no further slowing down in the building programme and a steady replacement programme must be unflinchingly pursued." He declared that the Estimates were the lowest since 1913.The Navy will have all the ships permitted by Treaty in 1936. The leading economies are said to be that there will be no combined manoeuvres of the Atlantic and Mediterranean Fleets this Spring and the personnel of the Navy has been reduced by 2,500.—*Reuter's

say:"In view of the fact that Japanese troops are still stationed in the several districts concerned, and in order to prevent any misunderstanding, I request that your mili-

LECTURE ON THEIR HABITS
AND CUSTOMS.Mr. D. O. de Silva, F.R.G.S., F.R.S.A., gave an interesting lecture on the costumes, customs, occupations and religion of the Japanese nation at the Kowloon
Union Church last evening.His travelogue on Japan, illustrated by 160 beautifully coloured slides, was a personally conducted tour through the most interesting parts of the country.Many places of great interest, including Kobe and Yokohama, the two principal ports of Japan, also Nikko, the ancient city with its temples, shrines and mausolea, were prominently featured while pictures of volcanoes, and the placid blue lakes, cherry blossoms, chrysanthemums, wisteria and other beautiful flowers in bloom as well as pictures of rapids were much in evidence.Some very good slides of the various classes of people of the Empire showed the many types of inhabitant, including priests of different denominations, mendic-ants, farmers and musicians.Marriage and funeral processions were also depicted while Japanese athletes engaged in their national pastimes, fencing and wrestling,
were shown.Each slide was described by the lecturer who, where necessary commented upon the historical interest of the places shown.The speaker showed glimpses of Oji-roku (or Big Hell) and in describing a photograph of himself and a companion standing in front of the volcanic crater in

ROTARIANS.*A PEN PICTURE.An interesting pen-picture of Burma and its people was given by Mrs. Broadbent at yesterday's luncheon of the Hongkong Rotary Club, held at Messrs. Lane Craw-ford's Restaurant under the Chairmanship of Sir William Hornell.In addition to Mr. and Mrs.
Broadbent, the Chairman welcomed
the following guests: Rotarian
L. E. Schroeder, of the Liege Club, Belgium, Mr. F. L. Cole, of the American Consulate, Hongkong,
Mr. S. Boxer, Warden of Morrison
Hall, University Hostel, Mr. Elly Kadoorie, of Marble Hall, Shanghai, Mr. G. Pickering, of Lloyd's Register, Mr. A. C. Spence,
Sydney, Australia, and Mr. E.
Fromm, Wisconsin, U.S.A.Mr. Schroeder, in a brief address, said that he was engaged on a business trip, and extended the best wishes of his Club in Belgium
to the Hongkong and Canton Clubs.
He remarked that there were ten clubs in Belgium, which had only eight million inhabitants, but Rotary was getting on very well
there.He referred to the fact that four years ago he attended the Rotary Convention at Minneapolis and urged all those who had the opportunity of visiting the Convention not to miss it.20 Years in Burma.In introducing Mrs. Broadbent, the Chairman explained that she and her husband had spent some 20 years in the latter as a practising barrister, in Burmah, and had spent some three years in Man-daly. The Chairman remarked that he had visited the country
and he hoped to be able to visit it again.Mrs. Broadbent said: "When I was asked to address you it was strongly indicated that the more frivolous I could be the better.
My subject, perhaps, lends itself
rather to this mode of treatment
as of all the races of the East the Burmese is easily the most gay and light-hearted."He has been called the "Irishman of the East," "Nature's gentleman," "A lazy rotter," (laughter).
Having spent 20
years in his country, and knowing him to some extent, I see the point of each of these descriptions. He is happy-go-lucky, unmethodical, unpunctual, unreliable and has no love for hard work. But he is blessed with a keen sense of humour and has very pleasant
manners.Take a respectable village elder,
one who has known nothing of cities and has had little intercourse with strangers.Simple Courtesy.He will receive you, a casual traveller, with wonderful simple courtesy, with none of the overeffusiveness or cringing sometimes displayed by Indians in similar circumstances. He neither asserts nor humbles himself. He spreads his best mat for you to sit upon and does not apologise for the absence of a chair, which, of course, is never used by him.
The Burmese word for it is
"Kabaing" meaning the "thing the foreigner sits on."Dislike Interpreters.Some little knowledge of the language is, of course, necessary.
If you want to establish friendly relations, for they have a strange dislike of being talked to through an interpreter, more especially if he is an Indian. There is no trace of shyness in the women.
Purdah is unknown here. They have always mixed freely with the men. They are extremely friendly and seem to take a real pleasure
in meeting a white woman, and areparticularly interested in her clothes.Conversation is a little limited,
and as with other Orientals consists mainly of searching questions
as to one's age, income, size and rent of house, husband's occupation and number of children.Mistake for Decoys.We once had the experience at a village, within twenty miles of Mandaly, though rather off the benton track, of being mistaken for decoys. We rode into this village early one morning to find it apparently absolutely deserted.
After a bit I caught sight of a face peeping out from behind the post of a house, then another from behind a sack of paddy. At length, a woman, braver than the rest, ventured out. As our talk with her was merely about buying some chickens, and the display of money showed that we meant to pay for them and not commandeer
them, others soon emerged and gathered round us. All the able-bodied men had gone off for some distance to cut wood, leaving the old men, women, and children, in the village. They told us that on catching sight of us a little distance off they really believed we were decoys, and that was why they had hidden themselves.Gaiety and Colour.Arriving in Rangoon, from India or China you would be struck by the atmosphere of gaiety and colour. Kipling, comparing it with India, describes it as a "cleaner, greener land." His stay in the country was quite the briefest, and in his fine literary song, "On the Road to Mandalay,"
he has taken more than a poet's licence with the geography of the country, but it sounds uncommonly
well.There is colour, gaiety and laughter everywhere. It is possibly infectious. Whereas in India the crowd is all clothed in white of a varying degree of cleanliness, and in China, black,
dark blue, and grey, a Burman crowd is a regular kaleidoscope of colour. An Indian crowd, too, is almost entirely male, and is grave and serious. In Burma, nobody seems serious. Women are as plentiful as men, moving about freely and unveiled, chattering, chaffing with passers-by, laughing
and smoking what Kipling called,
"her whacking white cheroot,"
not made of tobacco but of chopped up aromatic wood in a white bamboo fibre wrapping. Both men and women are clothed in skirts of bright coloured Burma silk. They live up to the slogan
"Encourage home industry."Young Smokers.The children are miniature replicas of their parents, complete with white cheroot or cigarette.
Anything that is old enough to walk is old enough to smoke.The Burman is small of stature, sloppy-eyed and yellow-skinned,
and distinctly Mongolian. They are quick and active of body and the young Burman is quite a fair athlete. He has shown extraordinary aptitude for football—soccer only, not rugby. Many years ago, a team of Rangoon school boys, none of them over 18, played a draw with a regimental team that had won the Army Cup in India.Excitable Race.The Burmans are excitable and fond of dramas, dances and shows of all kinds. Up to a point they are courageous. They are callous as regards causing suffering to others and prone to crimes of violence. Deceitry, that is, robbery with violence by armed men
in bands of five or more, is of common occurrence, and the percentage of convictions for violent crime is far higher in Burma than in any other province of India.Anti-British Movement.Sedition in Burma was no doubt stirred up by the first instance by agitators in India. They began by working on the Burman's religious feelings, telling him that the Westerners were slighting his religion when they visited his pagodas without removing their shoes, though the older homes of Buddhism, Ceylon and Japan, had never insisted on the removal of shoes at their sacred shrines.The agitator had his way, and in the name of religion, launched what was really a political and Anti-British movement. No European, barring an occasional tourist,
now ever goes up to pagoda platforms in Burma.Burma Pagodas.Burma pagodas are quite different from those of China. They are made of solid, lime-washed, brickwork. It is an act of merit to build a pagoda, but apparently there is no merit in repairing one that another man has built. The result is that the landscape is dotted with little white pagodas,
all built on the same pattern and most of them falling into decay.
Every English village has its church, but a Burma village can count its pagodas by the score.
The building of pagodas is so much in vogue that when conversing with a well-to-do elderly Burman, it is ordinary manners to assume that he has followed the fashion, and to address him as Pagataga, i.e., "builder of pagodas."The acquiring of merit is the keystone of Buddhism as practiced in Burma. But there are less expensive methods of acquiring merit than building a pagoda. A monastery is less costly, or an open platform with a roof over it,
where any casual traveller may camp.Women Have No Soul.Those who cannot rise so high can place little bowls of drinking water at the corner of the road.
Be it noted it is the wife who always keeps the bowls filled, but it is the husband who gets the merit.
She, poor thing, can never have a soul as long as she remains a woman. Her only chance is to be born some pleasant animal in the next life and gradually work up to be a man. "May you be born a pig or a woman in your next life"
is a specially scathing form of abuse.A male Burman Buddhist, however, is not born with a soul. In order to acquire a soul he must don the yellow robe and become a phongyi for some period of his life. In most cases this is for a few days only. About the age of 15 a Burman boy goes through a ceremony in which his head is made "white" by shaving, after which he assumes the yellow robe and goes into a monastery for a minimum period of five days.Thousands of Monks.The yellow robe is much in evidence all over Burma. In Man-daly alone there are many thousands of these monks. The universal kindness inculcated by the Buddhist religion does not seem to draw the line at sheltering criminals, and I fear that many a man who should be in gaol poses as a holy man under the yellow robe. It is a fact, at any rate, that when any man is wanted
by the Police they generally go and comb out the monasteries.At daylight, early morning streams of these yellow-robed figures wind their way through town and village, with large black lacquer, begging bowls hung round their necks and grasped with the two hands. Into these bowls the faithful empty out the bottoms of the rice-pots and curry pans—a most unholy mess the contents of these bowls must be! But it is

THE NAVY'S TRIBUTE TO M.2 VICTIMS: THE U. S. S. CALIFORNIA EAST BOUND.

The solemn scene on board H. M. S. Adamant during the memorial service to M. 2 in West Bay, Portland. After the Church of England and the Roman Catholic services had been read by the Rev. E. S. Ulyatt (left), R.N., and Father A. Forty (opposite), Adamant drifted over the spot where M. 2 is known to be and wreaths were dropped overboard.—(Times copyright).

Mr. P. Nichols and Miss Phillis Spender Clay were married at St. John's Church, Dormans Land, Surrey, on February 6, and our picture shows the bride and bridegroom.—(Times copyright).

PREPARED FOR ANY CONTINGENCY, the U. S. California, 32,600-ton flagship of the U. S. Battle Fleet, is on her way to the Pacific where she will participate in the "war" games scheduled in Hawaii. The California, one of the most modern fighting vessels afloat, is a super-dreadnaught. One of its main batteries is shown above. Naval authorities point out that concentration of the battle fleet at Pearl Harbour has no bearing on the Sino-Japanese situation, although Pearl Harbour would naturally be the base of operations if the fleet was engaged in the Orient.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE by KAY CLEVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Ann, Cecily and Mary Frances Fenwick live with their grandparents. The latter have been married since childhood. The grandparents known as "Uncle" and "Aunt"—have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 25, and Philip Fenwick, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Harry McKew, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name the wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibilities of the home.

Mary-Frances, 18, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl De Armount, a stock company actor. She meets him secretly on several occasions. The company De Armount is playing with disbands but he decides to remain in the city.

CHAPTER XXV

Mary-Frances' protestations to Earl might be taken, by the cynical, as proof of the capabilities of a woman's love for supreme self-sacrifice. Though there is this to be considered: The most thrilling drama, with the most beautiful heroine, does come to an end after three or four acts. The curtain falls. People go home. The most exciting novel, with the most charming, bewitching heroine, can be read through to its end in time, and shelved, and another one can be begun. Plans were evolved for a girls' camp, chaperoned by Ermintrude's mother, in June. Evenings were lengthened toward tennis and swimming. Mr. and Mrs. Hill had a new car and went for drives after dinner, and took Ermintrude and Ermintrude's friends, and stopped on the way home at three stations for milk shakes and hot dogs. But when a true creative artist has laboured long on a masterpiece she hesitates and hates like fury to turn it into a batch job.

"Sure, I know," Earl rejoined. "But I kind of been thinking—see?

Course, my first idea was to beat it. But I don't know. I got my room rent paid up until the end of next week, and they don't soak you so much for meals around here. I could write a few letters and kind of wait returns, and maybe I could do something in the meantime with those damn—pardon me—educational desks. No—" as Mary-Frances attempted an interruption—"wait, hon, leave me tell you. A couple weeks aren't going to make so much difference one way or the other right now. I was thinking that if I'd stick around awhile maybe you'd feel different about that classy little vaudeville act of ours. Sure, I know," to prevent another attempted interruption, "the idea don't appeal to you so much. But just the same, hon, I know it would go, and go big—see? Big! Course, if you had a happy home life here or anything—but you ain't, see? And then you being so crazy about me and all. And you mean a lot to me, too—see? And I'm giving that to you straight—see?" and so on.

It made excellent material to present to Ermintrude the following day. "He says he knows he isn't worthy to touch the pathway where my feet have trod. His professional career—nothing amounts to anything to him in comparison to our love for one another. He simply won't leave me, Ermintrude. I brought him to, but I mean too much to him, he says. He says I'm 'woman and child in one.' If I'll go with him, he'll go anywhere. Anywhere. But if I refuse, he'll stay right here by my side, and give up his professional career, and take any miserable, lowly work he can find rather than leave me." If I'll go with him—" Mary-Frances Fenwick, honest, lately I think you are just going cuckoo or something. Go with him! Well, I guess your grandma and grandpa and your sisters might have just a little something to say about you going with him."

"Well, who said I was going with him? I must say, Ermintrude—" "Well, you talk about it all the time. All the time."

"I do not. Last Wednesday I just barely told you that he was beseeching me to. And yesterday and to-day I just barely mentioned it again. Of course, if you don't want me to tell you anything at all, anymore why, I won't. Of course."

"I don't care if you tell me," said Ermintrude. "Only I do kind of think you've got this Earl awfully on the brain. If I talked about Peter every living minute of the day and night, you'd get sick of it, too, I'll bet. I guess maybe I love Peter as much as you love your old Earl, but I certainly haven't got him on the brain."

"Peter!" said the outraged Mary-Frances. "Why, Ermintrude Hill! Are you still thinking about Peter Morrison? Just because he asked you to his birthday party the first one, and wrote a note to you the next day, and gets red when he meets you on the street? That's different. That's just childish—that's all that is. Childish. You don't know the first thing about real, true, deep, passionate love such as ours."

Startlingly Ermintrude replied, "Oh, I don't know as you know so much about love, either," and pointed her chin out provocatively.

It was Saturday morning. They were walking to the store to do some marketing for Ermintrude's mother. Mary-Frances stopped, stood still. "Well, if I don't," she demanded, "who does?" "Older people, I guess," said Ermintrude, and tried to mask iconoclasm, flagrant with insouciance.

"Older people?" Mary-Frances, shaken, lunged at her. "Come on. We got to hurry, mother said. Mother said," continued Ermintrude, as if by chance, and happening to be on the subject of mother, anyway, "that younger people didn't. Last night Mrs. Mattason had to go over town to see her daughter-in-law to borrow a couple of covers for her bridge tables this afternoon, so we took her over in the new car. And she was worrying about her grandchildren, the twins, and she said modern girls didn't regard love right, or something."

"I don't remember just what she said. I was riding in front with daddy and not supposed to be listening. And mother said something, and Mrs. Mattason said they didn't understand about real love, and mother said she guessed they did as much as the girls of her period had, or even Mrs. Mattason's period. And Mrs. Mattason said why, or what did mother mean? And mother said she was becoming more and more convinced that people had to have been married 10 years, at least, and had a baby or two, and maybe even lost one (she was thinking about my little brother, Danny, I guess), before they even began to suspect the meaning of love, let alone understand it or know the first thing about it."

"Oh, well," Mary-Frances simply flicked that away with a feathery gesture and a lifted shoulder and a turned-up nose. "Of course, if you think your mother knows more about love than noted poets like Laurence Hope, and Mr. Browning, and Ella Wheeler Wilcox and everybody, there's just no use in talking to you at all."

"Poets, noted or not," contended Ermintrude, "can't mean everything they write—they'd go cuckoo if they did. They just write different ways, hoping to please different people—or for some reason. I don't know why. But you don't have to believe every word they write, like it was in the Bible, do you? Besides that, I guess maybe there are a few people in the world worth taking advice from besides poets. And if you could hear what my daddy says about my mother, I guess, maybe, you might think she was one of them."

"Who said I never took advice from anybody but poets?" Mary-Frances demanded. "I think your mother is an awfully nice lady, Ermintrude. But I guess she wasn't the toast of the south when she was a girl. Now, my grandmother—" "I know. You told me. My mother didn't live in the south."

"Well, Rosalie did. In South Carolina. And I asked her just the other day how people knew for sure when they were in love, and all I have to say is that what she told me, and she talked for pretty near half an hour on the subject certainly didn't sound much like what your mother had to say about being married 10 years and babies and all. And if age is all you go by, why, I guess Rosalie is maybe a little older than your mother."

Ermintrude, not barren of tact, remarked, "Miss Alderman was mad as hops when you cut basketball the other day."

"I didn't feel like rowdying around," Mary-Frances replied, and sighed spectacularly. "I had some poetry to copy."

"You'll be sorry, though, if she thanks you in gym," said Mary-Frances, deliberately dreamy, and, one fears, deliberately vengeful, might be far away, thinking of living my own way.

SHE WAS ASHAMEDWhen She Heard Him Say:
"Her Teeth Look As If She Never Brushed Them!"Mon. Tues. Wed.
3 SHADES WHITERNew Technique
Actually Whitens Teeth

If you really care what others think, start at once to use the new, approved Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Quickly and surely it kills the germs of Bacterial-Mouth which are the cause of ugly, discolored, decayed teeth and unhealthy gums.

Place a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush. It multiplies 25 times, becomes a cleansing, antiseptic FOAM which gets into every crevice, pit and fissure. Millions of dangerous mouth germs are killed, fermenting food particles removed, acids neutralized, gums made healthier and firmer, and best of all, teeth made whiter.

Kolynos is different, different in action—different in result. Try one half-inch on a dry brush, and in just three days you will have your proof of this new and amazing method.

DIET AND VITAMINS.

It is not sufficient for the health of the body that we eat merely enough food; we have to eat enough of the right sort of food. In addition to water and various chemical salts the bulk of an ordinary diet is made up of three types of food. First, there is the protein, a highly complex substance out of which the living tissues are built. There are endless varieties of protein and those in our diet are derived from such things as meat, eggs, fish, milk and vegetables. Secondly, there is the fat which we consume in the form of butter, cream, meat fat and vegetable fats. Thirdly, there is the carbohydrate, sugar, bread, cake, potatoes.

Now at one time it was thought that if only our diet contained a reasonable assortment of these three types of food, together with a sufficient water and salt, all must be well. In recent years, however, this theory was discovered to be fallacious and it was found that there were certain substances in the absence of which the health of the body could not be maintained. These substances are known as vitamins. We are ignorant of the precise way in which they act, but we do know what symptoms develop if they are absent from the diet and how even a minute trace of them when added to the diet will cause those symptoms to disappear.

Fortunately the vitamins are pretty widely distributed in natural foods, so that we are unlikely to suffer from their absence from our diet if only we will eat plenty of fresh food. The danger is if we begin embarking on a strict diet of our own invention, or if we try to live almost entirely on tinned foods, or, finally, if we feed our infants solely on artificially prepared foods.

LEATHER POLISHERS.

Housewives will appreciate the new chamois leather polishers, which give a much better polish than the ordinary squares of leather, and are simpler to work. The polishers are made in the shape of a shoe brush, with a wooden top, and scrolls of leather are arranged in holes in the wood, just as bristles are arranged in a brush.

AGELESS FASHIONS.The Dangerous Line.

The new Paris fashions are ageless. They are not directed solely towards enhancing flaming flappers. Plenty of understated styles are on the tapis, but the great aim and ambition of the French dress-makers is to clothe with grace and beauty their best clients—the mature women of the world.

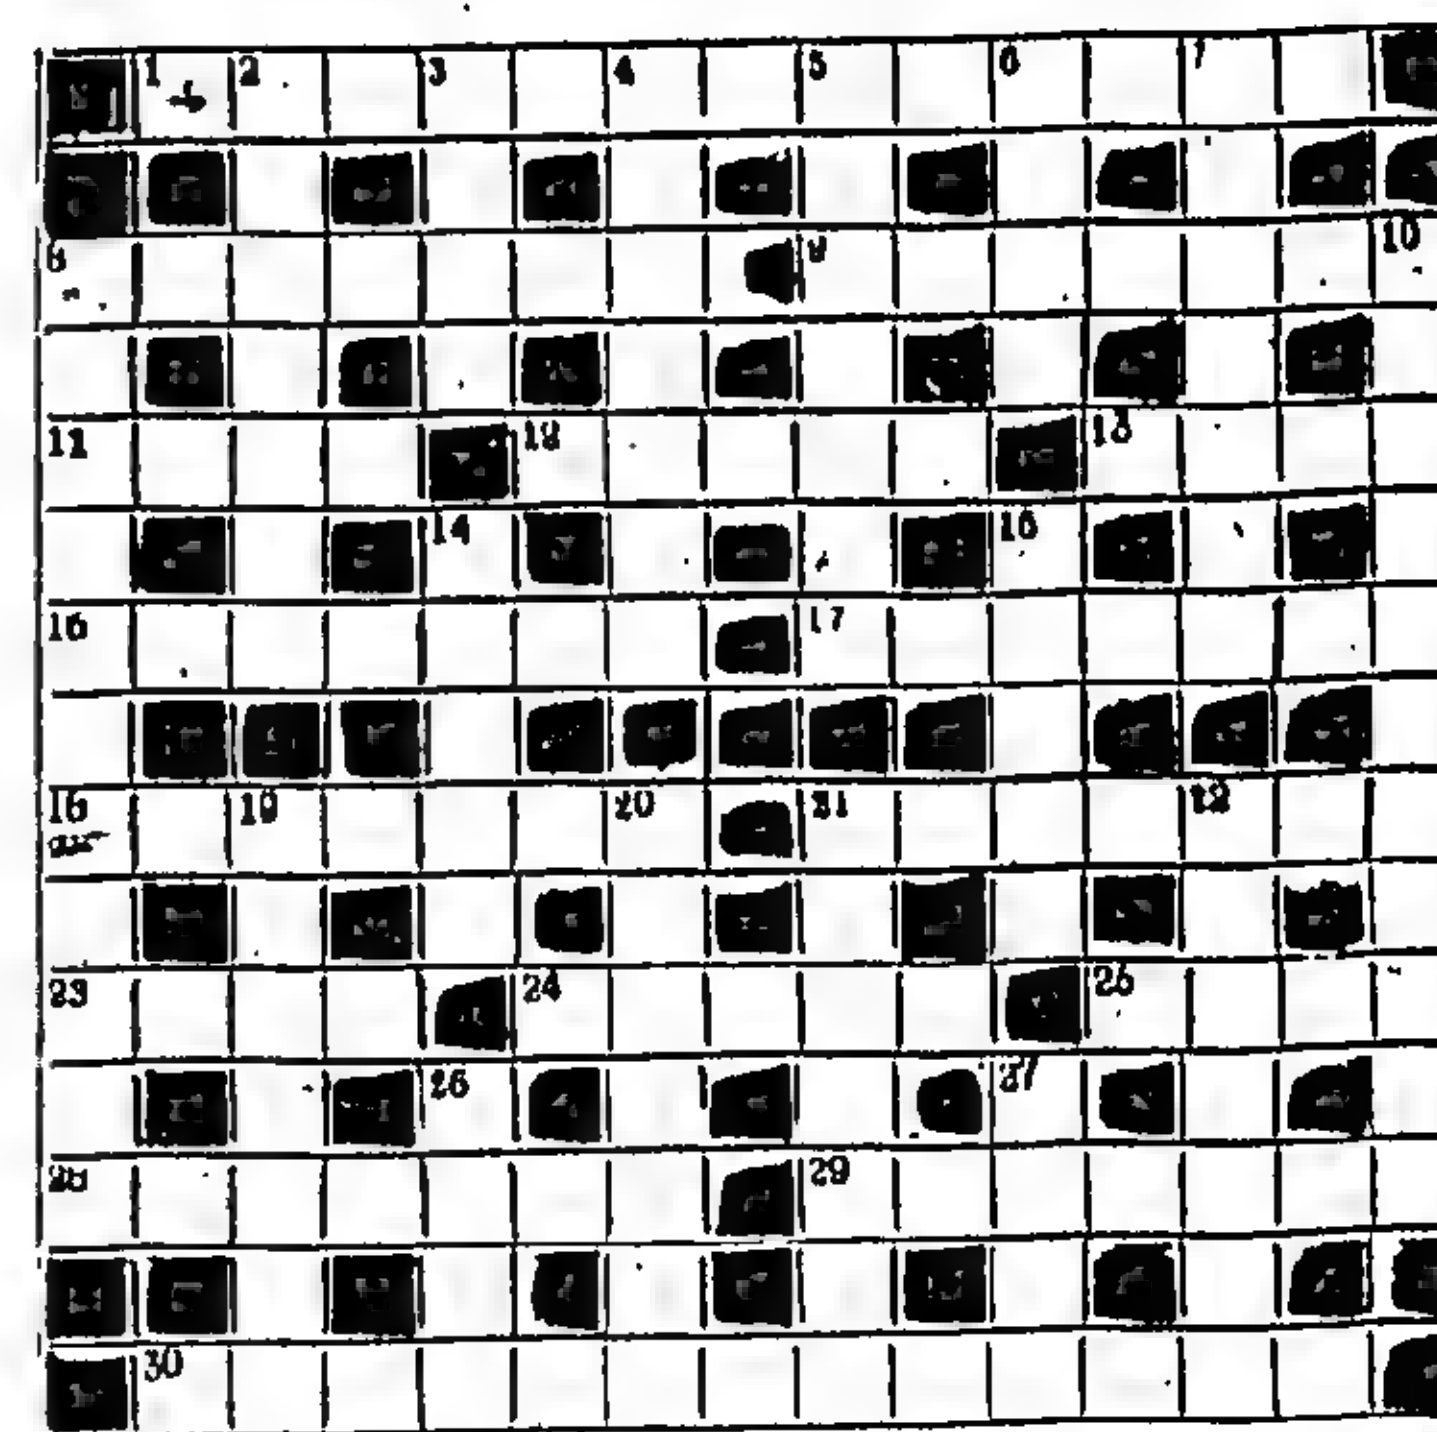

A dangerous line for middle age is the waistline. Anything in dress or coat that makes this line announce its position in bold terms is to be avoided. The short coat and jacket should be banned from all after-forty wardrobes. The long, unbelted coat is even smarter, and the tailored jacket that is wrist and finger-tip length is quite as smart as the short jacket and the bolero, both of which are forbidden fruit for the mature figure.

Skirts, too, are kind to the middle-aged figure, for they are most fashionable when they are only flared by gores, and the suit blouse falls over the top of the skirt, thus covering up the deadly waistline.

One piece daytime dresses are longer, and this length flatters the dignity of the mature. These dresses, whether they be wool or silk, may do without belts or other waistline indicators, and they are softened at neck and sleeves by dainty ruchings, jabots, and collars and cuffs that complement the wearer of any age. Long sleeves are as chic as short ones, and are chosen by all the after-forties who have not preserved young looking arms and shoulders.

A Dainty Gown.

The above gown is of white chiffon with unusual novelty pleating and wide girle and shoulder straps of glinting woven brilliants.

DIPLOMATIC USAGE:
A CONTRAST.

The difficulties which America
and Britain, with her colleagues
on the League, have had in coming to a working agreement in regard to the Sino-Japanese conflict are not entirely, nor, we suspect, fundamentally due to a difference of policy. We think that the matter goes deeper. America has not yet wrought out a recognisable technique of political and diplomatic usage. It may be that she is attempting to arrive at one, and that in the meantime she does not wish to be hampered by the European tradition. The net result at present is that there tends to be inevitable friction.

The Stimson policy as laid down in the note of January 7th might have won British assent if there had not been grave precedent for doubt as to whether it could, when the time came, be implemented. It necessarily has a nebulous appearance, and the precedents referred to would warrant the view that other nations in subscribing to it might find themselves, in virtue of the traditions of their foreign office procedure, committed further than a future American Government. It has been explained from the British side that commitments already formed with the League
precluded independent action.
Those commitments, moreover, led towards a definite policy, evolved
step by step. It must be acknowledged, however, that the feasibility even of this policy might become doubtful in view of economic realities and the fact that the League itself, though proceeding
on the lines of traditional diplomatic methods, has to work out a new technique of international action. The American declaration, if it could have come from a Government as able to implement its policy as the British Government, would have ensured freedom of action, and avoided the absurdity of giving even the most formal sanction to the deplorable happenings in Manchuria. But the trouble lies with the nature of American procedure. This is limited largely by the peculiar safeguards of the Constitution
though partly also by the incurable

"freshness", if we may use the expression, of American diplomacy.

The matter is most easily reduced to its concrete terms by asking what are the respective relations of Mr. Stimson and Mr. Borah to the foreign policy of the country.
Mr. Stimson is the head of the State Department in the Cabinet of the President. He announces the policy of the American Government, or of his Department. His policy is not presented to the Legislature, nor is he responsible to it. He need not defend his policy in the Legislature nor is he himself a member of that body.
Only when he wants to pass a Bill,
or to gain sanction for a foreign treaty, does he come into direct contact with it. Mr. Borah is the Chairman of the American Relations Committee of the Senate. That Committee constantly concerns itself with affairs, and its Chairman
frequently voices his opinions.
But his opinions have no necessary
relation to the policy of the Government. He speaks without the responsibility of office, and there have been a number of occasions in recent years when it would almost seem as if his opinions were representative of no-one but himself.
There is apparently no adequate means of co-ordinating the views of the State Department and the Foreign Relations Committee. The consequence is that not only is Government continually hampered by the doubt as to whether its policy will ultimately be endorsed by the Legislature, or, as in the inception of the League of Nations itself, be turned down, but the members of the Committee, in ignorance of the real facts of the case, may seriously embarrass the negotiations which the Government may have in hand. For the Committee, unless the Government transmit papers to it, which often may be impossible, knows no more than the man-in-the-street what is going on, and has not yet learnt,
or so it appears to the foreign onlooker, when it is wise to trust
the Government and keep silent.
No wonder then that foreign Governments scarcely know how to deal with the American State Department. Where really does it stand?

And behind this anomalous relationship of the Executive and the Legislature is the President, who
at any moment may turn down his Secretary and scratch the whole of his policy. He again may be watching the great American democracy, holding, as did President Wilson, that it is necessary to wait till it is ready before taking action.
The system of safeguards which the founders of the American Constitution so ably drew up works.
It might be contended, well inside
the nation. It presents formidable difficulties in the formation and making of a foreign policy, and in the carrying out of diplomatic negotiations with other nations,
which require care, delicate handling, or flexibility.

Praise to the Accent.

There is said to be a greater uniformity of speech and accent among all classes of society in England at the present day than there has ever been before. This disappearance of the accent from linguistic currency, hastened by the spread of education, increased facilities for travel, and the national standard set up by the British Broadcasting Company, arouses mixed emotions.
Some persons, who see in a man's accent only an undesirable badge indicating his social position, welcome it, while others consider that its passing takes with it a colour
and a variety that English speech can ill afford to lose. Many will feel that the latter are right. Differences in accent spring from so many other causes than class distinctions that their offensiveness in this respect is small. But, on the score of vividness, and colour,
and character, one can well sympathize with the complaint of the youngest son in St. John Ervine's
"The First Mrs. Fraser," that his father has taken from him his rugged and distinctive Scottish accent for the featureless uniformity of speech acquired in the halls and playing fields of Oxford. Moreover, if in future all Englishmen are to communicate their ideas to each other through the medium of the same system of noises, what particular system of noises are they all to adopt? Which accent is the correct one? Is the short "a," for example, or the broad "a" proper?
The New English Dictionary says
the latter, but the British Broad-

WHO IS TO
By the BISHOP of NORWICH. BLAME?

If God is Almighty, why is the world so miserable?

This question is not generally asked with a simple desire to trace
the two parallel lines of the power and the love of God, but in a spirit of fault-finding against God—with the idea that He ought to be doing better than He does.

To hear some people talk you would suppose that they could run
the world much more successfully if they had their chance. We knew a good many of these people
during the war—armchair critics
we called them.

The Same Puzzle.

One of the difficulties of replying to these questions about God and His providence is that they can be put in a few words, like a stale riddle. But the answer must be a much bigger affair, for the subject is large, and people will not wait to hear the rejoinder.
They will speak of the ways of God with no greater depth of thought than they would give to a man who had made a mess of some small business.

We can only see a very little bit of God's whole work, and that for a very little time. We are like a fly in a crack of one of the columns of St. Paul's Cathedral that should attempt to give its opinion on the architecture of the whole. We do not see enough to be in a position to criticise. But there is some light to guide us, and Bishop Butler long ago warned us of the folly of rejecting the guidance of such light as we have because we would like it to be brighter. No man would be so foolish as to refuse the fitful light of the moon
to help him to pick his steps on a dark night on the moor just because he would prefer the noonday sun to be shining. This puzzle is nothing new. The war and its aftermath have not created new difficulties: they have only shown up some old ones in a larger size.

It is no discovery of our own clever days that God's ways are past finding out. It was often said in the war, "he or she has lost his or her faith"; but it was it a faith that was much worth keeping, if it could only stand strains, or if it was only equal to facing the troubles that had so far fallen upon other people? "Now it is come upon thee, and thou faintest."
The scale of the working out of the puzzle may be greater in our own times, but the puzzle has been
the same from the beginning of human history.

Mankind's Choice.

Next, we cannot justly attribute to God all the evil in the world.
When God gave mankind the gift of free will, He gave to men and women the chance of choosing good or bad. And certainly individuals and nations have constantly chosen very badly; and have only themselves to thank for the consequent misery. God does not force people to do what is right; and by doing wrong they often set out on the road to evil, sorrow, and pain.

Before men blame God, let them be sure that they themselves, or other misguided and perverse people, are not to blame for the larger part of their misfortune.

Self-Will.

This thought of man's self-will
and of the way he has spoiled the world which God gave him as a home of righteousness and beauty

does not, of course, cover all the ground; the whole subject of the origin and progress of evil in the world is too big to be treated incidentally in one short article.
But these considerations do go a long way to explain the apparent contradiction between God's Al-mightiness and His loving kindness.

Perhaps it is the misrepresentation of the God of the Old Testament which partly causes the trouble. The God of the Old Testament is sometimes regarded as unfeeling and tyrannical. But without discussing the mistakes in such a view we may remember the bit of truth in what the child said, "Oh, that God is dead!" For it is the God of the New Testament with whom we are concerned.

You have to look at the best idea
you can get of God's ways and will.
You find that in the perfect life of Him Who in a human life among men showed what God is like.
There you see in their perfection sympathy and love, and manliness
and compassion and nobility and helpfulness. No one who came to Him in the right spirit was ever disappointed. He lived for His friends; He laid down His life for them. His ways we can understand. If the world had followed them it would have been a happier kind of place.

"His Own Interpreter."

If we are satisfied that He was nearer to the mind of God and understood His will better than we can, then we may take His estimate.
His representation of God. And He spoke of God as supreme and as a Father, who cares for His children, and takes thought even for the little ones, for the lilies of the field and the sparrows of the town. With such light already thrown by Him upon our puzzle,
we make a great mistake to allow what we do not know to rob us of what we do know. We can be prepared to wait for the day when we shall know all. "Now we see through a glass (i.e., only by reflections in a mirror) darkly; but then face to face."

If we can trust the God Whom the Master has shown us, we can leave the rest. We may not yet be able to explain it all to our minds.
But our hearts will be content, and be ready to say with Cowper the poet:

Blind unbelief is sure to err:
And scan His works in vain,
God is His own interpreter,
And He will make it plain.

PHIPPS among
THE TOUGH GUYS.

Guy's Hospital operated successfully on St. Bartholomew's Hospital at Richmond, removing the latter's hopes of the Hospitals
Rugby Cup without an anaesthetic.
Guy's collected eleven points (2 tries and a goal) from their patients, who made no reply.
They're tough, Guy's.

The trail to Richmond was easy to pick up. It had been unazed with flour. It appears that when one medical student is annoyed with another, nothing in the world removes his feelings like unloading a bag of the best self-raising over the source of his annoyance.

Several hundred students must have relieved their feelings on the way to Richmond, judging by the Arctic appearance of the district.

Floury Language.

The football was distinguished rather for enthusiasm than finesse.
The ball frequently played Cinderella, while the players were apparently trying to establish a practice on the spot.

In the meantime, exceedingly floury language proceeded from the touchline, where community singing had broken out afresh. Above the din I could distinguish:

"B-A-R-T-S—BARTS!"
And then an answering gurgle of:
"GUY-UY-UY-UY-UY-UY!"

Guy's early established an as-sencyency. Bart's were not taking their passes too well, but Guy's looked as if they took them three times a day after meals. It was not long before P. C. Alexander, getting the ball after a scrum,
walked through the Bart's defence
in a positively besides manner. The try was not converted.

Half-time. Consultations on both sides.

The second half brought the mixture as before—both teams going at it hammer and forceps. Guy's scored another try. Would they convert? Several hundred supporters took their pulse. Guy's converted. Several hundred supporters said "Ah!"

A final try for Guy's settled it.
The spectators finished their flour
and departed.

TELEPHONE CO'S EXPANSION.DEVELOPMENTS IN NEW TERRITORY.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Two automatic exchanges at Tai Po Market and Fanling are to be opened about the middle of this year, declared the Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie, presiding at the annual meeting of the Hongkong Telephone Company this morning. The Company's policy in the matter of telephone extension to other rural areas would be influenced by the support he stated.

The annual report commented on the progress of the Company, and the statement of accounts revealed a satisfactory year.

Mr. Mackie said:—Gentlemen,—The report of your Directors and statement of accounts for the financial year ending December 31, 1931, having been in your hands for the prescribed period, I will, with your permission, follow the usual procedure, and take them as read.

The Auditors' report is as follows:—“We have audited the books, accounts and vouchers of the Company for the year ended December 31, 1931, and have obtained all the information and explanations we have required. We have also conducted an audit of the share transfers and registers of the company throughout the year and have found same in order. In our opinion, the balance sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of affairs of the Hongkong Telephone Company, Limited, as at December 31, 1931, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the Company. Lower, Bingham & Matthews, Chartered Accountants, Auditors, Hong Kong, February 11, 1932.”

Increased Royalties.

Turning to the accounts, you will observe by referring to the debit side of Profit and Loss Account that the amount payable to Government in respect of royalties for the year under review was $39,588.00, being $4,122.00 in excess of that paid for the previous year and represents a very substantial contribution of public funds.

Consulting Engineer's fees show an increase of $3,505.94, which is due principally to the low rate of sterling exchange ruling during the year as the charge to your Company in this connection is in sterling.

Referring to the credit side of Profit and Loss Account, you will observe that the profit for the year was materially augmented as a result of sales of obsolete stores and plant, and your Company has now disposed of all the magnet equipment which became obsolete with the change-over to automatic working. In the circumstances, though a non-recurring nature, have been particularly helpful during the year under review in affecting, to a certain extent, the higher working costs occasioned by the low sterling value of the Hong Kong dollar.

Provision has been made for the payment of the usual bonus to European staff, which I have no doubt will be approved by shareholders, in view of the very satisfactory results obtained during the period under review, coupled with which much additional and, if I may say so, most satisfactory service was rendered in the matter of the installation and bringing into operation of the Trunk Line to Canton.

Bigger Reserves.—On the liabilities side of the balance sheet, you will observe that (subject to your approval of your directors' recommendation that $50,000.00 be appropriated thereto) general reserve accounts will reach a figure of $225,000.00 which sum is represented on the accounts side of the Balance Sheet by sound investments. You will be pleased to note the appreciation of the latter, as well as of the depreciation fund investments, as shown by the comparison between the cost of the investments and the market value as at 31st December, 1931.

A call of $2.50 per share on the partly paid shares of the Company and amounting to $900,000.00 was made on December 21, 1931, as it had been found necessary during the year to go into overdraft to meet payments in respect of the instalment due on the purchase of the automatic Exchange Equipment and to finance the cost of recurrent capital expenditure in the matter of obtaining supplies of underground cables and instrument plant for the normal development of your undertaking. As a result the overdraft has been retired during the financial period and, in addition, payment in the amount of $428,197.27 was made for the British Section of the Hongkong Canton Trunk Cable. In the circumstances and having regard to the heavy expenditure met, I think you will agree that the cash position, as indicated by the Balance Sheet, cannot but be regarded as eminently satisfactory.

Further Expansion.

The calling up of the additional capital, to which I have just referred, and which ranks for dividend as from January 1, 1932, will necessitate an increase in earnings for the year 1932 if the present rate of distribution is to be maintained, and every endeavour will be made to effect this result by further expansion of your business rather than by resorting to an increase in subscription rates.

My predecessor in the Chair has, on several occasions, commented on the advisability of obtaining Government's approval for increasing the amount of the annual appropriation to general reserve, and I would take this opportunity of expressing my concurrence in such views, more particularly having regard to the rapid growth of your Company's undertaking. It is gratifying to me to be able to report that the year under review has shown a record expansion of your business, resulting in the connecting up of 1,161 additional exchange lines as compared with 628 for the previous year.

This development can, I think, be attributed to the excellence of the service given to subscribers, coupled to the low subscription rates charged for such service.

Satisfactory Service.

The automatic system has now been in operation for nearly two years and I think you will agree that, notwithstanding the adverse effect of climatic conditions and the resultant difficulties experienced with a highly technical and extremely delicate installation, the introduction of this system has been an unqualified success, a fact borne out by the exceedingly low ratio of complaints.

The unpaid instalments still due on the automatic exchange equipments amount to £19,668.0.8, but under the contract conditions £12,827.13.0 of this sum will be paid in May, 1932, after which the amount outstanding will be reduced to a very low figure, representing the amount of the final instalment which is payable in May, 1933. This method of payment for plant, namely, by instalment against satisfactory performance, has proved most satisfactory as, apart from the assurance of the proper functioning of the plant, having regard to the fact that in the matter of the installation of exchange equipment provision must be made covering several years' growth with the result that a considerable portion of such equipment must remain non-revenue earning for several years, the Company is, as a result of such arrangement, enabled to defer the major portion of the capital outlay involved until such time as the equipment commences to become productive.

New Exchanges.

The rapid extension of your business will necessitate in the near future the installation of additional exchange equipments both in Hongkong and in Kowloon, and your Directors have already given instructions for specifications to be drawn up and tenders called for, in which relation it is expected that the limit of the capacity of the existing exchange equipments will be reached towards the end of next year and, in keeping with the progressive policy which your Company has adopted since its inception, it is proposed that the additional exchange equipments should be ready for service before that time.

As you are aware, trunk telephone service between Hongkong and Canton was established on September 1, 1931, when His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., in conjunction with the Provincial Governor of Kwangtung, Mr. Lam Wen-koi, performed the inaugural ceremony. All who have had occasion to speak to Canton must have been impressed with the clarity of the speech transmission and the rapidity with which connexion is made between these two Cities.

Canton Line Success.

Great interest is being shown in the service and, although this has only been in operation for several months, the returns indicate a steady increase in the traffic handled, and I am confident that the success of the project is already assured; furthermore, the linking up of Hongkong and Canton by telephone must have a very beneficial influence on the trading and social relationships of these Cities which will eventually be extended to embrace other centres in China as the trunk telephone network in the latter country is increased.

The question of developing telephone service in the New Territories has engaged the attention of your Directors, who have approved the installation of two small Automatic Exchanges at Tai Po Market and Fanling which, it is hoped, will be ready for service

NOT A FAMILY
PARTNERSHIP.DEFENCE IN BIG CLAIM.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon continued his opening address in the family partnership dispute case, which is being heard before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) in the Supreme Court, and which promises to be a lengthy matter.

There are three plaintiffs, Hung Yuk-sau, Hung Kung-cheong and Hung Yu-fai, alias Hung Shau-hing, all of No. 24, Ki Kon Lane, Amoy, at present staying at the Empress Hotel, Nos. 159-160, Connaught Road Central. Defendant is a Hong Hin (or Huen) chun, No. 12, Lung Tau Street, Kulang, Amoy, now living at the Great Eastern Hotel, No. 112, Connaught Road Central.

Plaintiffs claim a declaration that the Kai Sui Firm, or the Hung Kai Sui Firm, of Tai Sze Hong, Amoy, is a partnership of Hung Yuk-sau and other plaintiffs and defendant. For a declaration that the sum of $89,487.68, deposited by the Kai Sui Firm with the Cheu Tak Loong Firm, No. 26, Des Voeux Road West, and paid into Court to the credit of Original Jurisdiction action No. 237 of 1930, is the money of the parties and does not belong to defendant personally.

Plaintiffs further claim an injunction to restrain defendant from taking the above mentioned sum, pending the hearing of the action or further order of the Court. For an order that the money is to be paid out to plaintiffs and defendant in equal shares, such other relief as the Court may deem just, and costs.

For the defence, it is denied that the Kai Sui Firm is, or ever was a family firm, and that plaintiffs or any of them were at any time, partners of the firm. Defendant declares that he founded the firm himself and has always been the sole proprietor.

Defendant further states that the sums of money referred to in the statement of claim belong to him and that plaintiffs have no right or title to any part of it at all. In addition, says defendant, plaintiffs' claims are barred by the Limitation Acts and by the Mercantile Law Amendment Ordinance, 1864.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, together with Mr. Leo D'Almeida, junior, for plaintiffs, while Mr. Eldon Pettit, K. C., together with Mr. F. C. Jenkins, K. C., is for the defendant. The case is proceeding.

about the middle of 1932. Your Company's policy in the matter of extension of telephone service to other rural areas will be influenced by the support which it receives in connexion with the two new Exchanges referred to, as whilst your Company is prepared to accept an initial loss in the development of rural areas, it must see some prospect of such services becoming profitable within a reasonable period of time.

Cables Laid Down.

In order to be in a position immediately to meet orders for the installation of telephone service, your Company has laid down during the year under review 3,293.426 circuit miles of underground cables and covered distribution, and it is worthy of note that there must be very large percentage of the Subscribers' lines is served entirely by underground cables.

There being no further matters calling for comment, I now beg formally to propose that the Report of the Directors and the Accounts for the Financial Year ending December 31, 1931, as presented, be adopted, and that the following appropriations, recommended by your Directors, as incorporated in the balance sheet, be carried into effect namely:—

Payment of a Final Dividend of 6% making a total of 10% for the year, $192,000; Transfer to General Reserve, bringing same up to $225,000, $50,000; carry forward to next Account, $63,840.00.

Report Adopted.

The report and accounts, being seconded by Mr. D. H. Blake, were adopted unanimously.

On the proposal, Mr. Wong Ping-shun, seconded by Mr. Ezra Abraham, Sir Shou-shun Chow and Mr. D. H. Blake were re-appointed directors.

Mr. J. H. Rutledge proposed the re-appointment of Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews as auditors, at a fee of $3,400 a year. Mr. D. Tollen seconded, and the resolution was carried.

Those present were the Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie (Chairman), Sir Shou-shun Chow, Messrs. J. P. Warren, R. C. Shaw, T. H. Kotewall, J. Scott Harston, D. H. Blake, (Directors), J. H. Taggart (Managing Director), J. P. McKenzie (Secretary), Shareholders present were Messrs. J. H. Rutledge, Ezra Abraham, D. Tollen, E. M. Raymond, P. H. Sin, Wong Ping-shun, D. Tollen, Lam Kwai, Tang Hung-ka, C. Hatt, Yeung Yau and A. C. Groves.

STUDENT MYSTERY.

made frequent enquiries at the Hotel Cecil for Mr. Bradford this morning, he failed to see him, and it was not until 2.15 p.m. that he was put on the scent of the missing man. As already related, he found him sitting on one of the seats on Blake Pier. He was attired in white ducks, grey coat and felt hat, but had shaved off his moustache.

As soon as he learnt about the mystery attached to him, the news of which, he said, was entirely unexpected, he expressed a keen desire to make his presence known to the authorities.

He explained that he and Bradford were two University men from Hollywood, who were doing a trip of the world in order to finish off their education. They had been to Honolulu, Japan and Shanghai, and intended to go on to Brindisi from the Northern port, but owing to the disturbances there, no boat was leaving for their next call, and they had come down to Hongkong, on the Talawa and were intending to make the trip to Brindisi by the Moncalieri. This ship is scheduled to leave Hongkong to-day, but at noon, said Bryant, it had not arrived in port.

In reply to a question as to whether he had experienced any trouble during the last two days, Bryant replied in the negative and said that he had thoroughly enjoyed his stay and had just "bumped round."

WOMAN CONCEALS
OPIUM.TWO BUNDLES ROUND
WAIST.

Stopped and searched by Inspector Andrew in Yaumati after an armed robbery at No. 128, Woosung Street about a fortnight ago, a woman named Li Sam-mui was found to have two bundles of raw opium, 122 taels and 44 taels respectively, tied round her waist. After being arrested, she took the police to a house where 62 taels of non-Government prepared opium was found.

She was charged before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with unlawful possession of the contraband. She admitted that the opium was her own.

The prosecuting police officer stated that shortly after an armed robbery had been committed at No. 128, Woosung Street, Inspector Andrew was keeping a watch outside when the defendant came down the stairs of No. 130, the occupants of which were under suspicion, as it had been alleged that the robbers had obtained access to No. 128 from No. 130. Inspector Andrew had her searched and the contraband was found.

His Worship imposed a fine of $2,000 or two months' hard labour.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Cheero Club Apology.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—With reference to your report of my speech at the Cheero Club annual meeting, I find that my criticism of the Government was based on a false assumption and I wish to retract the implication that the Government was responsible for the closing of the Club while allowing other parts of the building to continue in use. I therefore wish to withdraw my charge that the Government had acted unfairly towards the Cheero Club and I unreservedly apologise for any embarrassment which I may have caused the Government.—Yours, etc., P. S. CASSIDY.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Those who roared at Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "The Cuckoos," have bigger laughs ahead in "Half Shot at Sunrise," a wartime comedy which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday.

The story deals with two American soldiers who go A.W.O.L. in Paris during the World War. It is packed with humorous situations in dialogue from the first reel to the last. Wheeler and Woolsey as the doughboys, win and lose, with their new laughing honours with their inevitable clowning. They steal their Colonel's car, his daughter and his "gout," electrify hundreds of military police, raise everything but the dead, and finally emerge heroes.

The longer, five-reel rolling ones, were written by Harry Tiersney, with lyrics by Anne Caldwell. The settings are the most elaborate ever seen in a production of this type, including an entire Parisian square and genuine vistas of No-Man's-Land.

Dance numbers, offering sensational precision routines, are by the Tiller Sunshinette Girls, brought from London for the picture. Dorothy Lee plays opposite Wheeler, while Loni Stanger and Woolsey comprise a new and laughable screen couple. Romantic interest is furnished by Hugh Trevor and Robert Robinson. Paul Sloane, who made "The Cuckoos," directed.

"The Yellow Ticket" is a role exceeding the dramatic power of his impersonation of the inept lawyer in "A Free Soul" and the father in "Guilty Hands." Lionel Barrymore, as the insidious head of the Central Russian Secret Police in Krasnodar, "The Yellow Ticket" will show at the King's Theatre next Friday.

Though Mr. Barrymore is reputed to be a most gentle and kindly individual in private life, one would never think that possible after seeing of relentless and cruel persecution of Ellen Landi, the brilliant Fox star who plays the feminine lead in the picture. So realistic and genuine is his performance that one would believe he took personal delight and satisfaction in his brutal treatment of the defenceless girl, forcing into his hateful soul indignity by circumstances beyond her control.

"The Yellow Ticket" is the first picture in which Miss Landi and Barrymore have played together and it is admirably suited to the highly dramatic type of acting both stars are noted for. With them is Laurence Olivier, newcomer from the London and Broadway stage. In the other featured roles are Walter Byrone, Sarah Padden, Rita La Roy, Mische Auer, Boris Karloff and Arnold Korff. It is the talking screen's version of Michael Morton's play that caused a great comment on the Broadway stage several seasons ago. It was adapted by Jules Farthman who also collaborated on the dialogue with Guy Bolton.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is a remarkable coincidence, but nevertheless true, that the first dramatic change role ever secured by Miriam Hopkins was opposite Fredrick March, with whom she appears to-day in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" under the direction of Rouben Mamoulian which is the King's Theatre's feature picture to-day.

March himself was just beginning his stage career at the time, and Miriam Hopkins, who had played successfully in musical comedy, wished to get into dramatic work.

Producers offered her musical comedy parts, but they did not consider her dramatic aptitude. Her opportunity finally came when "The Puppet" was about to open in New York. It had been tried out on the road as "The Marionette Man" with Claude Colbert and March later Paramount film stars, as the juvenile leads.

Producers, however, sought to change the girl type played as an Italian Miss by Miss Colbert. They wanted a blonde girl, so Miss Colbert stepped out of the part for others and future stage and screen fame.

Miss Hopkins was placed in the role and was so successful as the sweetheart of March that she remained in dramatic parts thereafter.

"Son of India" is the hardest job a studio electrician has to do. According to the chief electrician at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, it is the work entailed in lighting up the scene so that the picture will sparkle on the screen. This work played a prominent part in the technical details of Ramon Novarro's newest picture, "Son of India" which is coming to the Queen's Theatre to-day.

It seems that jewels are so small that in order to make them reflect properly on the screen it is necessary to concentrate a great deal of light on them. This requires special apparatus and spotlights which are not ordinarily used once a year.

Particular preparations had to be made for an important scene in the picture, in which Novarro, as a Hindu prince, shows his huge collection of pearls, diamonds, rubies and emeralds to Madge Evans, the feminine lead. Hal Rosson, cameraman, not only had to photograph the faces of the principals perfectly but likewise had to show off the beauty of the small gems. The co-ordination of light so that too much would not mar make-up features of the players and too little hide the sparkle of the jewels, said, a tiger hunt and an elephant stampede.

The story was adapted by Ernest Valda from F. Marion Crawford's novel, "Mr. Isaacs," and was directed by Jacques Feyder. In the supporting cast are Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Madge Evans, C. Aubrey Smith, and Alfred Hickman.

"Phantom of Paris."

In "The Phantom of Paris," which is the attraction at the Queen's Theatre, Leila Hyams plays her third successive picture with the great love of the screen, John Gilbert. This is the third time Miss Hyams has been the leading lady for Gilbert and there has been no let-up between pictures. Once again the scintillating blonde Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer beauty is to be seen in ravishing gowns, luxurious settings and unusual situations. But in "The Phantom of Paris" she takes upon herself the difficult part of playing first a young girl of a noble family in France and later the same girl grown older and wearied by the unhappy life she has had to endure with the man she does not love.

Natalie Moorhead, the sophisticated blonde, of the streaming evening wraps, languorous stride and ultra-fashionable creations, lends a subtle colour to the vivid film. It is she who forms the key to great intrigue and it is she who insinuates herself into the "good graces" of the marquis who makes his beautiful wife's existence almost unbearable with his attention to this other woman.

Jan Keith plays the nefarious marquis. His erect bearing, cold and calculating manner that melts to milk if it behooves him to meet his own ends, makes him a villain of first order.

Gilbert is also ably assisted by Lewis Stone, Jean Herselt, C. Aubrey Smith, and Alfred Hickman.

"All Quiet on the Western Front," the Universal picture of the year, is primarily the story of youth—the youth of all nations—in war. Even in the midst of war, youth does not forget romance. So in the masterpiece of Remarque, there is romance. It is one of the great passages of the book, and Universal has put the book on the screen exactly as the author wrote it. There is not a scene in the picture which is not in the book.

"All Quiet on the Western Front," which comes to the Central Theatre today, numbers in its cast a remarkable array of players. Louis Wolheim, Lewis Ayres and John Wray head the featured players, among whom also are Raymond Griffith, George "Slim" Summerville, William Bakewell, Walter Brown, Rogers Russell Gleason, Scott Kell, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis, Jr.

"Age For Love"

Howard Hughes' long promised and widely proclaimed super-picture, "The Age For Love," which among other significant pictures marks the return of Billie Dove, will come to the Central Theatre on Saturday.

This promises to be a signal event for local movie-goers, as metropolitan critics have acclaimed "The Age For Love" one of the outstanding productions of the year. It reveals a new Billie Dove, in the finest performance of her career, and in a sensational vehicle which was more than a year in preparation. It is a film with characteristic Howard Hughes extravagance and finesse.

An ultra-modern and sophisticated romantic-drama of love and marriage, "The Age For Love" is based on the sensational novel by Ernest Pascal with dialogue by Robert E. Sherwood, the famous movie critic and playwright.

The cast includes such brilliant players as Edward Everett Horton, Lois Wilson, Mary Duncan, and Charles Starrett. And Frank Lloyd, prize-winning director, made the picture for Howard Hughes.

"The Age For Love," a 1932 United Artists picture, while it arouses controversial problems, has an all-round appeal to picture patrons, and is one of those films which every person, young or old, will want to see at least once.

A BRIDE'S DEATH.

TRAGEDY ON DAY AFTER MARRIAGE.

Less than twenty-four hours after her marriage, a young Chinese bride, aged eighteen, was found dead, hanging to the bed, at 27, D'Aguiar Street on February 17 last. Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon held an inquiry with the assistance of a jury composed of Messrs. A. Stevenson (foreman), E. Thompson and Wai Man-lok.

The Coroner pointed out to the jury that there were three questions in connexion with the young woman's death. The first was whether the deceased had hanged herself or whether somebody else had; the second was, if she had committed suicide, whether any pressure had been brought on her to induce her to hang herself, and thirdly whether there were proper measures taken to revive her after her discovery.

Dr. A. V. Grenaves gave evidence that death was due to asphyxia from hanging.

The 22-year-old husband, Chau Siu-lam, was next called. Asked by the Coroner when he first got to know his wife, he replied that he did not know her. He explained that he first met her on August 31, 1931, when they were introduced by the go-between. On that occasion they had not spoken to each other. He next saw her on February 16 when they were married. She had come down from the country with her parents for the wedding.

The witness continued that the girl did not seem happy or cheerful and had a sorrowful countenance. After the festivities they retired at 2 a.m. In a conversation witness spoke to his wife about her fidelity and she unhesitatingly replied that she had done her husband a grave injustice, but she implored him not to inform anybody. The witness replied that for himself he did not mind, but that he would have to inform his parents who would decide.

They then went to sleep and witness was aroused shortly after seven o'clock by his brother-in-law who shouted "What's the matter?" Witness noticed that he was alone, and then saw the form of a person standing outside the mosquito net. He jumped out of bed and found his wife hanging from the bed post. His mother fainting when she learned of the tragedy and witness went to her assistance.

The husband's brother-in-law, in evidence, said that the bride had seemed very sad and worried. The next morning he was passing the couple's room and, on looking in, saw the wife hanging by the bed. He went in but was frightened and summoned the police.

In reply to the Coroner witness said that the girl had apparently committed suicide because she had been ashamed of herself.

Detective Sergeant McHardy gave evidence of going to the house and removing the body.

The inquiry was adjourned sine die for the mother of the deceased to be called she being at present in the country.

ORGAN AND SONG RECITAL.

MRS. BOWES-SMITH IN FAMOUS ANTHEM.

The nave of St. John's Cathedral was well filled on the occasion of the organ recital and sacred concert held yesterday afternoon. A beautiful arrangement of music was given by Mr. Frederick Mason, A.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., at the organ, assisted by Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith (soprano) and the cathedral choir. Mrs. Bowes-Smith sang the solo in the anthem "Hear my Prayer," which has been immortalised by E. Lough. This well-known lady singer sang the beautiful refrain and the accompanying air "O for the Wings of a Dove" with remarkable effect, and a more impressive rendering would be difficult to imagine.

Mendelssohn's "Hear Ye Israel" was her other contribution, and again Mrs. Bowes-Smith revealed, not only the majesty of her voice, but the sympathetic knowledge she possessed of the wonderful composition.

Mr. Mason selected a varied programme, interpreting Parry, Bach, Gullmunt, Ravel, Rheinberger and Hollins. In each case he was delightful in treatment and gave to his hearers a rare musical treat. His selections were: "Chorale Prelude on 'Dunedin' (Parry), Aria from Suite in D (Bach), Allegretto in B Minor (Gullmunt), Petite Pastorale (Ravel), Chinese Melody 'Ten Thousand Years of Happiness' (compiled by T. Z. Koo), Allegro Maestoso from Sonata No. V (Rheinberger) and Finale, En forme d'Ouverture (Hollins).

During the second part of the programme, the choir rendered Purcell's "Rejoice in The Lord." An offertory was taken during the recital for the Organ Fund.

STUDENT'S DEATH AT OLD FORT.

SCENE OF THE MURDER DESCRIBED.

Police officials yesterday detailed the grim discovery they made in the old Taiwan Fort in the Kowloon City district when giving evidence in the case in which a Chinese is charged with the murder of Liu Shek-hong, 25-year-old student son of a Nam Pak Hong merchant, Mr. Liu Wai-po.

In an underground chamber, the favourite resort of picknickers, whose names literally covered the walls, they said they found the body of the missing man, his throat slashed. Lying about were evidences of deliberate preparations for the terrible crime.

The preliminary Magistrate's hearing is being taken before Mr. Wynne-Jones, Mr. T.M. Hazlerigg appearing for the Crown.

Mr. E. R. Dover, the first witness called yesterday, stated he found 2½ grs. of opium present in solution form in the human stomach sent to him for analysis on February 11. It was difficult, he said, to say whether more than the quantity discovered had been taken, as absorption from the stomach into the system and digestive process continued after death.

Defendant's Arrest.

P. C. Wong Lam, who was on patrol duty in the Main Street at Shaohkwan West on the evening of February 18, stated that he received a report in consequence of which he went to No. 273. Outside the house he saw the defendant being held by a young Chinese and walking in the direction of the local Police Station, followed by a large crowd. Witness questioned the young Chinese and in consequence of what was told him, he took the defendant to the Station.

Lance Sergeant T. R. Hunter stated that on February 19 while on charge room duty at the Hongkong Station, he received a report which caused him to set out with a search party for Taiwan Fort.

"In one of the underground chambers," stated witness, "I found a body lying as shown in the photograph (produced). I examined the body and found a cord wound round the throat. The throat was badly cut. There was a considerable quantity of blood underneath the head.

"I found two other small bloodstains about six feet from the body, but no other bloodstains on the floor. I noticed a wound in the abdomen. The body was dressed in a white cotton shirt, a white singlet, a pair of white underdrawers and a pair of socks. On the floor near the right foot I found a felt hat.

Other Discoveries.

"I made a search for other clothing but found none. Near the left foot I saw a candle standing up on the floor, slightly burnt, and near it another unused candle and also a piece of Chinese newspaper. I found also a metal watch and a box (produced). I searched a recess and found a knife, which appeared to bear bloodstains, as it does now."

Witness stated that he left these articles undisturbed until the arrival of Inspector Fallon at about 12.15 p.m. Two hours later he accompanied the body to the Mortuary.

Det. Inspector Fallon, who took up the investigations at this stage, described the chamber, sunk underground at a distance of about 50 feet from the entrance to the fort, as measuring 45 ft. long by 12 ft. wide and 7½ ft. high. On the walls were scrawled any amount of names left there by Portuguese, English and other picknickers.

On a second visit he made to the scene after the first discovery, he was handed a pair of shoes found in a ravine below the parapet of the fort. The shoes bore no distinguishing marks, but they appeared to be of foreign make and were almost new.

The hearing was adjourned.

BRIDGE AND MAH JONG WELL-PATRONISED FUNCTION AT HONGKONG HOTEL.

A most encouraging attendance patronised the afternoon function at the Hongkong Hotel yesterday, when a bridge, mah jong and dancing party was given under the auspices of the Hongkong Women's Guild and Ministering Children's League. The proceeds are to be devoted to the M.C.L. charities.

The first floor lounge was given over to the card and mah jong players, more than 70 tables being occupied, and the roof garden was crowded with dancers. It was estimated that there were more than 400 people present.

After tea had been served, Mrs. H. T. Cressy called on Lady Peel, Patroness, who was among the bridge players, to present the prizes.

Mr. R. E. Lindell auctioned a football, autographed by many prominent people in Hongkong and abroad, donated by Mr. Tang Shiu-kin. It was secured by Mr.

Children Who Won't Play

It is very unnatural for a child to be reluctant to join in games, yet many of them display this peculiarity. Usually, such children are lacking in vitality, often the result of failure to obtain nourishment from their food.

If your child shows a tendency this way you should try Baby's Own Tablets. This remedy, specially devised for children, cleanses the food tract and tones up the digestive organs, thus enabling more nourishment to be assimilated.

Baby's Own Tablets are a splendid stand-by for parents in many ways. The tablets will rapidly set right abnormal conditions in stomach and bowels, break up colds, allay cramp and simple fevers, check diarrhoea and expel worms, whilst during teething they are especially useful, easing the pains and thus enabling the child to enjoy health-giving, natural sleep. Baby's Own Tablets contain no narcotic or other harmful drugs, but comprise a doctor's formula of proved merit. All chemists and stores can supply you.

Fish "Too Wet?"

A traveller once asked intelligent questions of a fisherman as to how he reconciled the catching of fish with the tenets of his religion. The fisherman explained that he thought the fish were getting too wet so he took them out of the water and laid them on the bank to dry!

Fresh milk is never to be consumed by Burmans because it deprives the calf of its proper food. Nestle's condensed milk sells better in Burma than anywhere else in the world. It is an elegant and suitable offering to make to a monk.

Interesting Tribes.

Living in Burma, near its borders, mostly in the hills, there are some quite interesting peoples and tribes. The most numerous are the Karens but they are now largely settled in the plains. They are stouter and more persevering than the Burmans, less volatile and less light-hearted. In dress and habits they are now hardly distinguishable from the Burmans.

With the Burman the missionary has made little headway, though the former is quite polite to his would-be convert and pleased to discuss Christianity, but it rarely gets beyond that.

Gift for Music.

The Karens, on the other hand, are largely Christians. They have a good deal of folklore of their own. In this there is a story of a white man with a book under his arm who was to teach them the truth, so they recognized the missionary at sight. They have a great gift for music and have taken readily to the European style. Their voices are often really beautiful, and Karen choirs will render sacred music, not only hymns, as well as any Western choir.

I do not mean that they only sing sacred music. I have heard Harry Lauder's songs given every ounce of their value by an educated Karen.

Women's Faces Tattooed.

In the North-West are the Chins who tattoo the faces of their women on marriage, so as to make them less attractive to raiding tribes. I should think they achieve their object as the poor things look most repulsive. Their neighbours, the Kachins, blanch the teeth of their women with the same object. The Kachin was recruited during the war by way of experiment. He showed himself a very smart, bright little soldier, very like the Gourdah in appearance. The same cannot be said of the Burman who will not take soldiering seriously.

The Palauangs, a small tribe, seem to admire a swanlike neck in their women, as they bind their necks round with brass rings, adding to these from time to time, till a most formidable brass collar is formed. It is said that when a missionary once persuaded a Palauang convert to remove her rings, the poor woman could not hold up her head without them, so they had to be replaced.

The Shans, living in the Shan states, are divided into a good many tribes. They are ruled by Tam-bwas, the equivalent of a petty rajah in India, under the

career with Earl, or—anything, by that time.

Small dining tables were set out on a tiled terrace, and there were a pool and a fountain and a smooth green lawn, and away in the distance Mount Hood gleamed warm pink against a blue sky.

Ann brought her eyes back from the mountain to look again at Phil, across the table from her. He was handsome and wise and strong and smiling, and he loved her. She smiled, too, and said, "Phil, dear, I adore this place. However did you find it, away out here?"

"A friend of mine told me about it. There's dancing, later, inside, if we care to stay."

"Let's! But—can we? It has been so long since we have danced. How long?"

"Too long. We do get into ruts. Sort of forget about good times to be had, don't we?"

"Perhaps. But during the winter there isn't much to do. We don't care for public dances."

"No. But we could go places and dine, as we're doing this evening, and dance, if—"

"If what?" she asked, but she continued smiling, because she did not know what Phil had begun to say. "If you had the proper things to wear to the better places, or weren't always getting dinner at home, or too tired."

"If we'd plan," he said. We will, after this. We'll have good times this summer, and we'll keep them up next winter. What about it. You beautiful?"

guidance of British officers.

"Sons of the Lake."

An interesting small Shan tribe near Port Stedman are the people who row with one leg. They are known as luthas, that is, sons of the lake. They are lake dwellers, their houses being built on piles over the water. Their staple diet is fish, obtained mostly by spearing. An lutha, when he goes solo fishing in a small dug-out, finds he can see the fish and spear them more quickly by standing up. To propel his craft, he curls one leg around the paddle which is fixed in a rowlock, steadying the paddle with one hand while the other grasps the spear. The same method is employed in larger dug-outs with several rowers.

Boat Racing.

Boat racing is a very favourite amusement with them. Canoes travel very fast and they get quite a long and powerful stroke. Crews of men and women have been brought down to Mandalay and Rangoon to race against each other for the entertainment of Royal and Vice-Royal visitors. I have not nearly exhausted these tribes, but I do not want to exhaust you. I am sure you would find Burma a fascinating country, and it is not so very difficult to get to from here. I hope what I have said may have roused your interest in it and its people. (Applause.)

The Club's Thanks.

In expressing the Club's thanks to Mrs. Broadbent for her address, Rotarian L.C.F. Bellamy remarked that he had spent three years in Burma but it was so long ago that when he went to a pagoda he did not have to take off his shoes. He added that he had listened care-

Resolution.THE END OF THE DEBATE.

London, Mar. 8.
Sir John Simon, in the League
Assembly at Geneva to-day, read
a message from Sir Miles Lampson
the British Minister in China, stating that in accordance with the Assembly's request, the British,
United States, French and Italian authorities at Shanghai are collaborating to send Geneva daily, a joint telegram giving the latest available information regarding the situation in the Shanghai neighbourhood.

The first report dated March 6th
gave the position of the Japanese lines, and stated that occasional skirmishing was then continuing.
The Assembly continued the general debate on the various aspects of the question.

Later,
The Assembly has concluded the general debate on the Sino-Japanese dispute and has appointed a Drafting Committee to co-ordinate
the resolutions and to present one Resolution to the Assembly. It will probably be submitted on Thursday. *Reuters and Lath-

WAR OFFICE VOTE.

London, Mar. 8.
Everyone's attention has been fixed upon the small detachment of the British Army carrying out a grave responsibility in Shanghai.
Brigadier-General Fleming has been asked to show, not only the qualities of a soldier, but those of a diplomatist and a statesman,
and he has shown these qualities
to a degree of which they might all be proud.

As regards the troops themselves, he had been informed by one recently returned from the Far East, that five years ago there was anti-British feeling in China.
Ambassadors of Peace.

Now this had apparently disappeared, which he attributed largely to the behaviour of the troops, who had shown themselves
the best ambassadors of peace.

He felt sure that the whole House would join in sending a message of goodwill and congratulations to the small detachment which had so nobly upheld the cause of peace and the honour of Britain.

Thus Mr. Duff Cooper, the Financial Secretary to the War
Office, in introducing the Army
Estimates in the House of Commons to-day.

£3½ Millions Saving.
The Estimates showed, he said,
that the amount asked for was £36,488,000, a saving of £3,442,000
on the sum voted last year.

This reduction was achieved by drastic economies and the suspension of many essential Army services.

One economy of £1,000,000 was obtained by the cancelling of the BUDGET NEARLY BALANCED.BRITISH FINANCIAL STRENGTH.

London, Mar. 8.
Revenue returns for the week ending March 6th indicate that revenue continues to come in satisfactorily and that the economies forecasted in the revised Budget of last September will be realised.

The total revenue received into the Exchequer during the week amounted to £26.6 millions and expenditure to £17.2 millions, leaving a surplus of £9.4 millions,
and reducing the deficit from £46.4 millions to £27 millions.
This is £21 millions less than the deficit on the same day of last year.

There now remain three and a half weeks in which to secure a balanced Budget, and there seems every reason to expect that this will be accomplished. Income Tax requires only £17½ millions and the surtax £11 millions to secure the estimate.

Jones at the Central Police Court this morning for allowing his dog to be at large without a muzzle. A similar summons against Mr. O. G. Anderson, of 509, The Peak, was answered by the defendant who said that the dog was now dead. His Worship remarked that a caution would meet the case.
Sub-inspector Chester Woods intimated that Mr. Anderson was rather for-unate, as three summonses had been taken out in respect of the same dog.

territorial Army's annual camp training, a useful saving, but this it was felt could not be repeated
next year.

Mr. Duff Cooper recalled that his labour predecessor at the War Office, in presenting the Estimates last year, had stated that economies had been carried to the utmost practical limit. Nevertheless the army vote had been reduced to meet the special call for economy by a saving of $½ millions. This year's estimates must, therefore, not be taken as a standard to which the future estimates could be expected to conform. —British Wireless.

Estimates Agreed.

Later,
The House of Commons late tonight agreed to the Army Estimates.

Mr. Duff Cooper referring to the favourableness of the time
for recruiting, said that qualified judges were of opinion that the events in Shanghai had encouraged recruiting to a considerable extent. —Reuters.
